Walkout

Frank Costello (rear center, light suit), reputed head of a nation-wide crime syndicate, glares at committee members as he stalks angrily out of Senate Crime Investigating Committee hearing in New York. Defying the threat of arrest and a charge of Congressional contempt, Costello staged the walkout rather than face further questioning about his shadowy activities. Wide Open '47 Gambling At Saratoga Is Reported

State Police Inspector Tells Committee Places Were All Closed in 1950, Says No Action Followed His Report

New York, March 16 (AP)—A picture of wide-open gambling houses in Saratoga Springs, upstate New York resort area, was given Senate crime probers today as they awaited a showdown with rebellious racketeer Frank Costello.

Costello, the reputed crime-ring kingpin who stormed out of a hearing yesterday, was ordered to return this afternoon (2 p. m.). If he didn't, the committee said, he would be brought in under arrest.

Firing the morning session was testimony by State Police Inspector Charles La Forge that in a 1947 investigation he found the horse race center of Saratoga, N. Y., a beehive of gaming dives.

The places were open "all through the 40s," the witness said, but were closed down in 1950 by state police.

La Forge said his 1947 report was turned over to his superiors, but brought no action.

Await Orders

He said state police do not act in local matters "unless ordered to do so by the mayor, or the district attorney, or the upper echelon, or the governor of the state of New York."

Sen. Charles Tobey (R.-N.H.), noting that the report apparently went up through channels to the governor's office, asked why La Forge didn't see Gov. Thomas E. Dewey when nothing was done.

"We just don't do those things," the inspector said.

'Politically Controlled'

La Forge said that Saratoga police were "politically controlled," and that the sheriff's office apparently was too. The police chief, he said, would cooperate "in other phases of the law," but wouldn't discuss gambling.

"A sickening and disgusting picture," remarked Tobey.

Replied La Forge: "I will agree with you, senator."

The inspector said that in October, 1949, he got the "green light, more or less, to make arrests."

"That," protested Tobey, "was three years too late."

"I would say so," said La Forge.

The inspector said he was ordered to make the investigation, and used an eight-man detail in surveying the "Spa" area in which he found roulette, dice, chemin-de-fer tables and other gaming in full swing.

He said curfews, banning the sale of liquor after 3 a. m., were ignored, as were state liquor control laws prohibiting liquor sales in places where there was gambling.

Most of the places were expensively furnished clubs, he said, but he found one "known as the Sawdust Joint" that apparently was for "the common people, more or less."

"There were no carpets and we found about 200 people in there gambling—apparently the class of people who can't afford to go to the plush places," he said.

Gambler Meyer Lansky, and underworld figure Joe Adonis, said to be a lieutenant of Costello, reportedly own interests in some of the places, La Forge said.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.), committee chairman, said there also is evidence that Costello himself "had part of someone else' interest" in the Arrowhead, named as one of the gambling houses.

Kefauver said earlier a U. S. marshal was being sent to inform Costello of the committee's ultimatum to return, or face arrest.

Efforts to reach Costello to learn if he would reappear were unavailing. At his apartment at 115 Central Park West, doormen turned away newsmen. A woman who answered the telephone there said "no comment" and hung up.

Warning Note Is From Boy Aged 10

Mrs. Snyder's Fainting Spell Only Result in Trio's Plot

That note, "you will die," was the brainchild of a youngster 10 years old.

But it caused quite a furore, and one woman, alone in her home, fainted after reading the "warning."

However, the case is closed, police said today as they told a reporter about rounding up three boys involved, the 10-year-old, one 11 and the other 12.

According to Detective Clarence Brophy, they delivered three notes just to see what would happen.

And, plenty did happen after Mrs. Charles Snyder of 140 Elmendorf street, read hers. She fainted.

Mrs. Snyder, who had been ill, received the note Tuesday at 8:27 p. m. while she was alone. Her husband had stepped out for 10 minutes to get a newspaper.

He found her on the floor in a faint, and, after reading the note in her hand, called the police.

Chief Was Right

Chief Raymond Van Buren's deduction about the childlike handwriting was that pranksters were operating in the neighborhood. And, he was right.

The Freeman's account of Mrs. Snyder's shock brought a mother to police headquarters—and with her was her boy. He had admitted to Mom that he was in on the deal.

From this point on, the problem was Detective Brophy's. And, his fatherly talk unraveled the whole mystery—and a few other things like air that was let out of automobile tires in the neighborhood.

He wound up talking to three boys, one of whom he advised that he quit the scheme before it hit the climax.

The other two went right on with the plan thought up by the 10-year-old, writing "you will die,"

House to Put Debate Off To April 3

Three Days for Views Are Scheduled for Draft and Training Measure

'Offer' Is Included

Inductees Can Specify Whether They Prefer Segregation

Washington, March 16 (AP)—House leaders have decided to postpone until after Easter what promises to be tumultuous debate on a bill to reduce the minimum draft age to 18½ and establish a future universal military training program.

After a four-day wrangle behind closed doors, the House Armed Services Committee approved the bill late yesterday, 32 to 3.

Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.), the committee chairman, arranged to go before the rules committee today 11 a. m. and ask for floor clearance. He proposed three days of general debate, starting on April 3.

Provision Is Written

Before it voted approval of the measure, Vinson's committee wrote in a provision to give prospective inductees the opportunity to say in writing whether they wish to serve in units segregated by races. The armed forces would be required to honor such requests if military necessity permits.

The amendment, sponsored by Rep. Winstead (D.-Miss.), was approved 21 to 12. It would permit both whites and Negroes to say whether they wished to serve in an all-white or all-Negro unit or in a non-segregated outfit.

The amendment runs counter to the program of President Truman, who has directed the armed forces to eliminate segregation as rapidly as practicable.

Ceiling Eliminated

A bill passed by the Senate a week ago today would permit drafting of youths at 18 years of age, after the pool of men from 19 through 25 years has been exhausted.

The House Committee also knocked out a 4,000,000-man ceiling on the size of the armed forces. A ceiling of that size was included in the Senate bill over Pentagon objections.

When the measure reaches the floor, Republicans are expected to renew attempts, rejected by the committee, to write in an armed forces limitation and a ban on sending troops to Europe without Congressional approval.

Correction on TV Ban

Ban television sets in New York state! No, indeed, only those planned for automobiles, according to a bill given final approval in the Assembly at Albany, March 14. This probably is a relief to readers who saw yesterday's article on the TV ban, which, due to tricks that type can play, gave the impression that all sets would be taboo.

House Committee Proposes 36 Millions Cut for Agencies

Treasury, Postal Units Would Lose About 1.3 Per Cent of Sum Asked

Washington, March 16 (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today recommended a $36,525,000 cut in next year's budget of the Treasury and Postoffice Departments.

That represents a reduction of about 1.3 per cent under the amount President Truman asked for the two departments for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The committee asked the House to cut that much from the $2,958,125,000 requested, applying $11,151,000 of the reduction to the Treasury's request for $597,251,000 and $25,374,000 to the $2,360,874,000 sought for the Postoffice Department.

No Big Reductions

There were no substantial reductions recommended for any of the subordinate bureaus and agencies which make up the two departments.

The bill will be debated by the House next Tuesday. It is the first of the departmental budget bills to be presented to the House this year. The Appropriations Committee abandoned last year's system of lumping the entire federal budget into a single measure.

Compared with this year's appropriations for the two departments, the bill's total represents a cut of $88,021,800.

In addition to the cash in the bill, there is provided for the Treasury Department approximately $11,500,000,000 in so-called permanent appropriations and trust funds, the largest of which is $5,800,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

Civil Defense Bill Passes, Awaits Governor's Signature

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—New York will be plunged into a state of defense emergency as soon as Governor Dewey signs the war-regimentation bill, which the Democrats claim will make him a dictator.

The far-reaching civil defense measure — keystone of Dewey's program to place the state on a wartime footing because of the international crisis — was approved by the Legislature yesterday, after stormy debate.

The defense emergency becomes effective upon Dewey's signing the bill and continues as long as the national emergency exists.

During the emergency, Dewey, a new 28-member state defense council and the existing state civil defense commission will hold unparalleled powers over local government and the lives and property of New York's 15,000,000 people.

Use of many of the more drastic powers would be restricted to time of actual attack.

Final approval of the program came in the Senate, 31-25, after two and one-half hours of raging debate and defeat of Democratic amendments to further soften the already toned-down plan.

Three Republicans voted against it. They were Thomas C. Desmond of Newburgh, Stanley J. Bauer of Buffalo and William J. Bianchi, Republican-American Labor Party senator from Manhattan.

Desmond, a wealthy, retired engineer, said he had voted against the bill because "it tends toward setting up a dictatorship."

"It is an insult to the patriotism of the volunteer workers," he told a newsman. "Everything sought to be done by the bill can be done by volunteer efforts."

Some of the Democrats were rougher. They charged that Dewey wanted dictatorial powers.

"Stalin is only a pale carbon copy of the power the governor seeks," cried Democrat Mario M. Deoptatis of Manhattan.

Only one Democrat voted for the bill—Senator John M. Braisted, Jr., of Staten Island.

He said he could not "go home and tell my people I voted against civil defense. This transcends political considerations."

Dewey, who once called the measure "repulsive" but necessary to prepare the state for "the most savage" atomic blitz, has said that martial law would be the only alternative to his broad, civilian-control-led program.

Such powers as seizure of private property, including public utilities, and control of transportation and communications facilities, are restricted to use in event of actual attack.

The measure provides for the drafting of manpower for civil defense jobs in the event of war, but conscription apparently would be possible before then if voluntary quotas were not filled on a specified time-table basis.

Meanwhile, Dewey and the two state defense agencies could order cities and counties to establish civil defense organizations and to recruit, train and equip personnel to man them.

The governor could remove local officials for "willful failure" to comply with state civil defense orders.

The governor and the defense units could order the evacuation of persons from a community in the event of "or in anticipation of" an attack.

They also will be empowered to supersede state and local laws to carry out the civil defense program.

Esopus Association Seeks Court Test Of Reassessments

Attorney Is Instructed to File Action in Supreme Court on Doubt Basis

The Town of Esopus Taxpayers' Association at a meeting Thursday night in Port Ewen determined upon legal action in its fight against the reassessments on real property in that town.

Attorney Peter H. Harp of New Paltz, retained by the association as counsel, was instructed to file an action in Supreme Court to have the lien of the tax removed because of a "cloud on the title."

Among the grounds listed for the action is the allegation that a "property owner was denied the right to examine and compare assessments."

Attorney Harp said he intends to file the action late this afternoon or tomorrow. The action will probably be placed on the calendar for the May term of Supreme Court, over which Justice Donald S. Taylor is scheduled to preside.

Article 15 of the Real Property Law of New York state was listed as the authority under which the action is taken.

Directed Against Tax

The action is to be directed against the tax levied in December, 1950, based upon the controversial assessment rolls which resulted from last summer's revision.

If successful, the action could result in the setting aside of the 1950 tax already paid by property owners pending a clarification of the issues involved. In such a case, amounts already paid, in many cases paid "under protest," could be retained to the credit of the taxpayer against whatever the final tax would be determined to

200,000 Textile Workers Cancel Their Strike Plans

Boston, March 16 (AP)—A threatened strike of 200,000 CIO cotton and rayon workers was canceled out today with an 11th-hour agreement between the Textile Workers Union and mill owners in the New Bedford and Fall River areas.

Settlement came only a few hours before the midnight strike deadline last night when the union accepted management's offer of a 7½ per cent wage increase and other benefits.

The union had demanded a 12 per cent salary boost.

Although the agreement must still be ratified by the rank and file, union President Emil Rieve extended existing agreements until March 31 to forestall work stoppage pending ratification.

The agreement directly affects some 30,000 workers in New England but the union said a walkout would have spread to 200,000 mill hands in northern and southern mills along the Atlantic seaboard.

The union said the contract, if ratified, will run for two years with a wage reopening at the end of the year.

Current salaries, the union said, are $1.31 in the north and $1.21 an hour in the south.

The pay raise must be approved by the Wage Stabilization Board but Rieve said:

"There'll be no work stoppage in the event of disapproval. We are not going to strike the mills for something they cannot help."

Only a few hours after settlement was reached in Boston CIO textile workers went on strike in

New Red Defense Is Situated 20 Miles South of Parallel

By OLEN CLEMENTS

Tokyo, March 16 (AP)—An artillery duel roared along the Korean war front today after the Reds abruptly halted an eight-day retreat and stood their ground.

Communist troops signalled the end of the withdrawal by opening up their heaviest artillery barrage of the war. Hard-pressing United Nations troops replied in kind.

The new Communist defense line is about 20 miles south of Parallel 38. It stretches across Korea for 30 miles, just below Chinese field headquarters at Chungchon.

Just before they stopped running and began to fight back, the Reds gave up the important road hub of Hongchon, 20 miles south of the parallel that used to mark the boundary between Communist North and Republican South Korea.

Hongchon Captured

American tanks and infantrymen rolled into almost-deserted Hongchon Thursday against light, scattered small arms fire.

Only five civilians were on hand to greet the Americans. Last week the city, normally of 15,000 population, held 40,000 Red troops.

Its capture gave the allies another link in their chain of strong points stretching from liberated Seoul across the Korean peninsula.

The U. S. 24th and 25th Infantry Divisions and First Cavalry Division tore at the new Red defense line from Hongchon west.

The U. S. First Marine Division hit the line east of Hongchon.

To the right of the marines, bayonet-wielding U. S. Second Division troops carved a dent in the Red defenses north of Yudong on the east-central front.

Bayonets Are Sharpened

The Americans honed their bayonets on stones, then drove the

President Pins Hopes on History

Truman Says Men Getting Criticism Honorable, Names Dawson

Key West, Fla., March 16 (AP)—President Truman pinned his hopes today of a favorable verdict from history on whether "we get through this era without a third world war."

Mr. Truman made it clear that he had no word to say about mounting newspaper cartoon and editorials criticism that has followed in the wake of his flight to Florida March 2 for a sunshine and work vacation.

The President, in a 100 per cent defense of administration officials who have been brought into a Senate subcommittee inquiry into RFC loans, contended that his administration's house is always clean and that history will have to record the verdict on his administration.

The President spoke out sharply late yesterday at a news conference on this naval submarine base.

Those under criticism, including his administrative assistant, Donald S. Dawson, are honorable—all of them are, Mr. Truman said.

Defies Suggestion

And, defying a suggestion by Senator Knowland (R.-Calif.) that he return to Washington and clean house, the President said:

My house is always clean. What are you talking about?

Mr. Truman seized upon the occasion of the news conference—his first since his arrival in Florida, to compare his troubles to those of Lincoln, Washington, Jefferson and other great presidents.

He expressed his disdain for those who have tried to capitalize on testimony critical of Dawson and Mrs. E. Merle Young, wife of an RFC favorite whose name has figured in the inquiry.

To the newspapermen, assembled on the lawn outside the Little White House, Mr. Truman said of his presidency:

"I hope it will be remembered for its sincere effort for world peace, and if we accomplish that, if we get through this era with-

Stabilizer Awaits Next Move of 2

Johnston Says Industry and Labor Must Make Approach to Solution of Situation

Sawyer Makes Bid

Commerce Chief Asks New Restrictions on Consumer Buying

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Government leaders today grew more cheerful over controlling prices, more gloomy over getting a labor-management agreement for controlling wages, and more alarmed over the need for controlling bank loans and installment buying.

That, in brief, was today's situation in the fight to stabilize America's whirling economy. Here are the details:

1. PRICES:

Price Director Michael V. DiSalle told a reporter he now thinks the general level of prices can be stabilized by mid-May or June—that is, 30 to 60 days sooner than the former target date of midsummer.

He said the immediate effect of three big retail and wholesale food orders, due shortly, will be to roll back most food prices and increase very few. (However, many rolled-back food prices would be free to rise again, if farm prices rose.) Incidentally, the three orders have been postponed until next week because of last-minute changes.

Halted in February

The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced last night that the long, long climb of retail food prices halted in the last half of February. In fact these prices in eight large cities actually made a small decline (two-tenths of one per cent), after a big 1.8 per cent rise in the first half of February. Price controllers couldn't claim full credit for the decline, because the sharpest drop was in fresh vegetables and fruits, which are exempt from price controls. But DiSalle gave other evidence for his increasing optimism: for example, average wholesale prices have made no net gain in the last four weeks.

2. WAGES:

Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston sat back and played a waiting game. Temporarily at least, he has ceased his efforts to reestablish a wage stabilization board with a degree of authority that will suit both labor and management. Neither side has approved his last compromise proposal. Now he says—not too cheerfully—that it's up to them to make a move.

Says He's Through

Johnston said he is through making changes in the wage formula that was written by the wage board before it was crippled by the resignation of the labor members. That formula limits raises to 10 per cent above Jan. 15, 1950.

Yesterday, he met leaders of the meat-packing unions in a session that he said was "like a rodeo"—it was so lively—and didn't budge from his decision to hold meat workers to the 10 per cent limit. He said that his answer would be the same in other situations.

One such situation is that of northern cotton-rayon textile mills, where a strike was averted last night but where the agreement is conditional on wage board approval.

3. BANK LOANS and installment buying:

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer told reporters yesterday present restrictions on credit have had no marked effect in combatting inflation. He called for new restric-

Treasury, Postal Units Would Lose About 1.3 Per Cent of Sum Asked

Washington, March 16 (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today recommended a $36,525,000 cut in next year's budget of the Treasury and Postoffice Departments.

That represents a reduction of about 1.3 per cent under the amount President Truman asked for the two departments for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The committee asked the House to cut that much from the $2,958,125,000 requested, applying $11,151,000 of the reduction to the Treasury's request for $597,251,000 and $25,374,000 to the $2,360,874,000 sought for the Postoffice Department.

No Big Reductions

There were no substantial reductions recommended for any of the subordinate bureaus and agencies which make up the two departments.

The bill will be debated by the House next Tuesday. It is the first of the departmental budget bills to be presented to the House this year. The Appropriations Committee abandoned last year's system of lumping the entire federal budget into a single measure.

Compared with this year's appropriations for the two departments, the bill's total represents a cut of $88,021,800.

In addition to the cash in the bill, there is provided for the Treasury Department approximately $11,500,000,000 in so-called permanent appropriations and trust funds, the largest of which is $5,800,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

Civil Defense Bill Passes, Awaits Governor's Signature

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—New York will be plunged into a state of defense emergency as soon as Governor Dewey signs the war-regimentation bill, which the Democrats claim will make him a dictator.

The far-reaching civil defense measure — keystone of Dewey's program to place the state on a wartime footing because of the international crisis — was approved by the Legislature yesterday, after stormy debate.

The defense emergency becomes effective upon Dewey's signing the bill and continues as long as the national emergency exists.

During the emergency, Dewey, a new 28-member state defense council and the existing state civil defense commission will hold unparalleled powers over local government and the lives and property of New York's 15,000,000 people.

Use of many of the more drastic powers would be restricted to time of actual attack.

Final approval of the program came in the Senate, 31-25, after two and one-half hours of raging debate and defeat of Democratic amendments to further soften the already toned-down plan.

Three Republicans voted against it. They were Thomas C. Desmond of Newburgh, Stanley J. Bauer of Buffalo and William J. Bianchi, Republican-American Labor Party senator from Manhattan.

Desmond, a wealthy, retired engineer, said he had voted against the bill because "it tends toward setting up a dictatorship."

"It is an insult to the patriotism of the volunteer workers," he told a newsman. "Everything sought to be done by the bill can be done by volunteer efforts."

Some of the Democrats were rougher. They charged that Dewey wanted dictatorial powers.

"Stalin is only a pale carbon copy of the power the governor seeks," cried Democrat Mario M. Deoptatis of Manhattan.

Only one Democrat voted for the bill—Senator John M. Braisted, Jr., of Staten Island.

He said he could not "go home and tell my people I voted against civil defense. This transcends political considerations."

Dewey, who once called the measure "repulsive" but necessary to prepare the state for "the most savage" atomic blitz, has said that martial law would be the only alternative to his broad, civilian-control-led program.

Such powers as seizure of private property, including public utilities, and control of transportation and communications facilities, are restricted to use in event of actual attack.

The measure provides for the drafting of manpower for civil defense jobs in the event of war, but conscription apparently would be possible before then if voluntary quotas were not filled on a specified time-table basis.

Meanwhile, Dewey and the two state defense agencies could order cities and counties to establish civil defense organizations and to recruit, train and equip personnel to man them.

The governor could remove local officials for "willful failure" to comply with state civil defense orders.

The governor and the defense units could order the evacuation of persons from a community in the event of "or in anticipation of" an attack.

They also will be empowered to supersede state and local laws to carry out the civil defense program.

200,000 Textile Workers Cancel Their Strike Plans

Boston, March 16 (AP)—A threatened strike of 200,000 CIO cotton and rayon workers was canceled out today with an 11th-hour agreement between the Textile Workers Union and mill owners in the New Bedford and Fall River areas.

Settlement came only a few hours before the midnight strike deadline last night when the union accepted management's offer of a 7½ per cent wage increase and other benefits.

The union had demanded a 12 per cent salary boost.

Although the agreement must still be ratified by the rank and file, union President Emil Rieve extended existing agreements until March 31 to forestall work stoppage pending ratification.

The agreement directly affects some 30,000 workers in New England but the union said a walkout would have spread to 200,000 mill hands in northern and southern mills along the Atlantic seaboard.

The union said the contract, if ratified, will run for two years with a wage reopening at the end of the year.

Current salaries, the union said, are $1.31 in the north and $1.21 an hour in the south.

The pay raise must be approved by the Wage Stabilization Board but Rieve said:

"There'll be no work stoppage in the event of disapproval. We are not going to strike the mills for something they cannot help."

Esopus Association Seeks Court Test Of Reassessments

Attorney Is Instructed to File Action in Supreme Court on Doubt Basis

The Town of Esopus Taxpayers' Association at a meeting Thursday night in Port Ewen determined upon legal action in its fight against the reassessments on real property in that town.

Attorney Peter H. Harp of New Paltz, retained by the association as counsel, was instructed to file an action in Supreme Court to have the lien of the tax removed because of a "cloud on the title."

Among the grounds listed for the action is the allegation that a "property owner was denied the right to examine and compare assessments."

Attorney Harp said he intends to file the action late this afternoon or tomorrow. The action will probably be placed on the calendar for the May term of Supreme Court, over which Justice Donald S. Taylor is scheduled to preside.

Article 15 of the Real Property Law of New York state was listed as the authority under which the action is taken.

Directed Against Tax

The action is to be directed against the tax levied in December, 1950, based upon the controversial assessment rolls which resulted from last summer's revision.

If successful, the action could result in the setting aside of the 1950 tax already paid by property owners pending a clarification of the issues involved. In such a case, amounts already paid, in many cases paid "under protest," could be retained to the credit of the taxpayer against whatever the final tax would be determined to

New Red Defense Is Situated 20 Miles South of Parallel

By OLEN CLEMENTS

Tokyo, March 16 (AP)—An artillery duel roared along the Korean war front today after the Reds abruptly halted an eight-day retreat and stood their ground.

Communist troops signalled the end of the withdrawal by opening up their heaviest artillery barrage of the war. Hard-pressing United Nations troops replied in kind.

The new Communist defense line is about 20 miles south of Parallel 38. It stretches across Korea for 30 miles, just below Chinese field headquarters at Chungchon.

Just before they stopped running and began to fight back, the Reds gave up the important road hub of Hongchon, 20 miles south of the parallel that used to mark the boundary between Communist North and Republican South Korea.

Hongchon Captured

American tanks and infantrymen rolled into almost-deserted Hongchon Thursday against light, scattered small arms fire.

Only five civilians were on hand to greet the Americans. Last week the city, normally of 15,000 population, held 40,000 Red troops.

Its capture gave the allies another link in their chain of strong points stretching from liberated Seoul across the Korean peninsula.

The U. S. 24th and 25th Infantry Divisions and First Cavalry Division tore at the new Red defense line from Hongchon west.

The U. S. First Marine Division hit the line east of Hongchon.

To the right of the marines, bayonet-wielding U. S. Second Division troops carved a dent in the Red defenses north of Yudong on the east-central front.

President Pins Hopes on History

Truman Says Men Getting Criticism Honorable, Names Dawson

Key West, Fla., March 16 (AP)—President Truman pinned his hopes today of a favorable verdict from history on whether "we get through this era without a third world war."

Mr. Truman made it clear that he had no word to say about mounting newspaper cartoon and editorials criticism that has followed in the wake of his flight to Florida March 2 for a sunshine and work vacation.

The President, in a 100 per cent defense of administration officials who have been brought into a Senate subcommittee inquiry into RFC loans, contended that his administration's house is always clean and that history will have to record the verdict on his administration.

The President spoke out sharply late yesterday at a news conference on this naval submarine base.

Those under criticism, including his administrative assistant, Donald S. Dawson, are honorable—all of them are, Mr. Truman said.

Defies Suggestion

And, defying a suggestion by Senator Knowland (R.-Calif.) that he return to Washington and clean house, the President said:

My house is always clean. What are you talking about?

Mr. Truman seized upon the occasion of the news conference—his first since his arrival in Florida, to compare his troubles to those of Lincoln, Washington, Jefferson and other great presidents.

He expressed his disdain for those who have tried to capitalize on testimony critical of Dawson and Mrs. E. Merle Young, wife of an RFC favorite whose name has figured in the inquiry.

To the newspapermen, assembled on the lawn outside the Little White House, Mr. Truman said of his presidency:

"I hope it will be remembered for its sincere effort for world peace, and if we accomplish that, if we get through this era with-

Stabilizer Awaits Next Move of 2

Johnston Says Industry and Labor Must Make Approach to Solution of Situation

Sawyer Makes Bid

Commerce Chief Asks New Restrictions on Consumer Buying

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Government leaders today grew more cheerful over controlling prices, more gloomy over getting a labor-management agreement for controlling wages, and more alarmed over the need for controlling bank loans and installment buying.

That, in brief, was today's situation in the fight to stabilize America's whirling economy. Here are the details:

1. PRICES:

Price Director Michael V. DiSalle told a reporter he now thinks the general level of prices can be stabilized by mid-May or June—that is, 30 to 60 days sooner than the former target date of midsummer.

He said the immediate effect of three big retail and wholesale food orders, due shortly, will be to roll back most food prices and increase very few. (However, many rolled-back food prices would be free to rise again, if farm prices rose.) Incidentally, the three orders have been postponed until next week because of last-minute changes.

Halted in February

The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced last night that the long, long climb of retail food prices halted in the last half of February. In fact these prices in eight large cities actually made a small decline (two-tenths of one per cent), after a big 1.8 per cent rise in the first half of February. Price controllers couldn't claim full credit for the decline, because the sharpest drop was in fresh vegetables and fruits, which are exempt from price controls. But DiSalle gave other evidence for his increasing optimism: for example, average wholesale prices have made no net gain in the last four weeks.

2. WAGES:

Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston sat back and played a waiting game. Temporarily at least, he has ceased his efforts to re-establish a wage stabilization board with a degree of authority that will suit both labor and management. Neither side has approved his last compromise proposal. Now he says—not too cheerfully—that it's up to them to make a move.

Says He's Through

Johnston said he is through making changes in the wage formula that was written by the wage board before it was crippled by the resignation of the labor members. That formula limits raises to 10 per cent above Jan. 15, 1950.

Yesterday, he met leaders of the meat-packing unions in a session that he said was "like a rodeo"—it was so lively—and didn't budge from his decision to hold meat workers to the 10 per cent limit. He said that his answer would be the same in other situations.

One such situation is that of northern cotton-rayon textile mills, where a strike was averted last night but where the agreement is conditional on wage board approval.

3. BANK LOANS and installment buying:

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer told reporters yesterday present restrictions on credit have had no marked effect in combatting inflation. He called for new restric-

Wide Open '47 Gambling At Saratoga Is Reported

State Police Inspector Tells Committee Places Were All Closed in 1950, Says No Action Followed His Report

New York, March 16 (AP)—A picture of wide-open gambling houses in Saratoga Springs, upstate New York resort area, was given Senate crime probers today as they awaited a showdown with rebellious racketeer Frank Costello.

Costello, the reputed crime-ring kingpin who stormed out of a hearing yesterday, was ordered to return this afternoon (2 p. m.). If he didn't, the committee said, he would be brought in under arrest.

Firing the morning session was testimony by State Police Inspector Charles La Forge that in a 1947 investigation he found the horse race center of Saratoga, N. Y., a beehive of gaming dives.

The places were open "all through the 40s," the witness said, but were closed down in 1950 by state police.

La Forge said his 1947 report was turned over to his superiors, but brought no action.

Await Orders

He said state police do not act in local matters "unless ordered to do so by the mayor, or the district attorney, or the upper echelon, or the governor of the state of New York."

Sen. Charles Tobey (R.-N.H.), noting that the report apparently went up through channels to the governor's office, asked why La Forge didn't see Gov. Thomas E. Dewey when nothing was done.

"We just don't do those things," the inspector said,

'Politically Controlled'

La Forge said that Saratoga police were "politically controlled," and that the sheriff's office apparently was too. The police chief, he said, would cooperate "in other phases of the law," but wouldn't discuss gambling.

"A sickening and disgusting picture," remarked Tobey.

Replied La Forge: "I will agree with you, senator."

The inspector said that in October, 1949, he got the "green light, more or less, to make arrests."

"That," protested Tobey, "was three years too late."

"I would say so," said La Forge.

The inspector said he was ordered to make the investigation, and used an eight-man detail in surveying the "Spa" area in which he found roulette, dice, chemin-de-fer tables and other gaming in full swing.

He said curfews, banning the sale of liquor after 3 a. m., were ignored, as were state liquor control laws prohibiting liquor sales in places where there was gambling.

Most of the places were expensively furnished clubs, he said, but he found one "known as the Sawdust Joint" that apparently was for "the common people, more or less."

"There were no carpets and we found about 200 people in there gambling—apparently the class of people who can't afford to go to the plush places," he said.

Gambler Meyer Lansky, and underworld figure Joe Adonis, said to be a lieutenant of Costello, reportedly own interests in some of the places, La Forge said.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.), committee chairman, said there also is evidence that Costello himself "had part of someone else' interest" in the Arrowhead, named as one of the gambling houses.

Kefauver said earlier a U. S. marshal was being sent to inform Costello of the committee's ultimatum to return, or face arrest.

Efforts to reach Costello to learn if he would reappear were unavailing. At his apartment at 115 Central Park West, doormen turned away newsmen. A woman who answered the telephone there said "no comment" and hung up.

Warning Note Is From Boy Aged 10

Mrs. Snyder's Fainting Spell Only Result in Trio's Plot

That note, "you will die," was the brainchild of a youngster 10 years old.

But it caused quite a furore, and one woman, alone in her home, fainted after reading the "warning."

However, the case is closed, police said today as they told a reporter about rounding up three boys involved, the 10-year-old, one 11 and the other 12.

According to Detective Clarence Brophy, they delivered three notes just to see what would happen.

And, plenty did happen after Mrs. Charles Snyder of 140 Elmendorf street, read hers. She fainted.

Mrs. Snyder, who had been ill, received the note Tuesday at 8:27 p. m. while she was alone. Her husband had stepped out for 10 minutes to get a newspaper.

He found her on the floor in a faint, and, after reading the note in her hand, called the police.

Chief Was Right

Chief Raymond Van Buren's deduction about the childlike handwriting was that pranksters were operating in the neighborhood. And, he was right.

The Freeman's account of Mrs. Snyder's shock brought a mother to police headquarters—and with her was her boy. He had admitted to Mom that he was in on the deal.

From this point on, the problem was Detective Brophy's. And, his fatherly talk unraveled the whole mystery—and a few other things like air that was let out of automobile tires in the neighborhood.

He wound up talking to three boys, one of whom he advised that he quit the scheme before it hit the climax.

The other two went right on with the plan thought up by the 10-year-old, writing "you will die,"

House to Put Debate Off To April 3

Three Days for Views Are Scheduled for Draft and Training Measure

'Offer' Is Included

Inductees Can Specify Whether They Prefer Segregation

Washington, March 16 (AP)—House leaders have decided to postpone until after Easter what promises to be tumultuous debate on a bill to reduce the minimum draft age to 18½ and establish a future universal military training program.

After a four-day wrangle behind closed doors, the House Armed Services Committee approved the bill late yesterday, 32 to 3.

Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.), the committee chairman, arranged to go before the rules committee today 11 a. m. and ask for floor clearance. He proposed three days of general debate, starting on April 3.

Provision Is Written

Before it voted approval of the measure, Vinson's committee wrote in a provision to give prospective inductees the opportunity to say in writing whether they wish to serve in units segregated by races. The armed forces would be required to honor such requests if military necessity permits.

The amendment, sponsored by Rep. Winstead (D.-Miss.), was approved 21 to 12. It would permit both whites and Negroes to say whether they wished to serve in an all-white or all-Negro unit or in a non-segregated outfit.

The amendment runs counter to the program of President Truman, who has directed the armed forces to eliminate segregation as rapidly as practicable.

Ceiling Eliminated

A bill passed by the Senate a week ago today would permit drafting of youths at 18 years of age, after the pool of men from 19 through 25 years has been exhausted.

The House Committee also knocked out a 4,000,000-man ceiling on the size of the armed forces. A ceiling of that size was included in the Senate bill over Pentagon objections.

When the measure reaches the floor, Republicans are expected to renew attempts, rejected by the committee, to write in an armed forces limitation and a ban on sending troops to Europe without Congressional approval.

Correction on TV Ban

Ban television sets in New York state! No, indeed, only those planned for automobiles, according to a bill given final approval in the Assembly at Albany, March 14. This probably is a relief to readers who saw yesterday's article on the TV ban, which, due to tricks that type can play, gave the impression that all sets would be taboo.

House Committee Proposes 36 Millions Cut for Agencies

Treasury, Postal Units Would Lose About 1.3 Per Cent of Sum Asked

Washington, March 16 (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today recommended a $36,525,000 cut in next year's budget of the Treasury and Postoffice Departments.

That represents a reduction of about 1.3 per cent under the amount President Truman asked for the two departments for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The committee asked the House to cut that much from the $2,958,125,000 requested, applying $11,151,000 of the reduction to the Treasury's request for $597,251,000 and $25,374,000 to the $2,360,874,000 sought for the Postoffice Department.

No Big Reductions

There were no substantial reductions recommended for any of the subordinate bureaus and agencies which make up the two departments.

The bill will be debated by the House next Tuesday. It is the first of the departmental budget bills to be presented to the House this year. The Appropriations Committee abandoned last year's system of lumping the entire federal budget into a single measure.

Compared with this year's appropriations for the two departments, the bill's total represents a cut of $88,021,800.

President Pins Hopes on History

Truman Says Men Getting Criticism Honorable, Names Dawson

Key West, Fla., March 16 (AP)—President Truman pinned his hopes today of a favorable verdict from history on whether "we get through this era without a third world war."

Mr. Truman made it clear that he had no word to say about mounting newspaper cartoon and editorials criticism that has followed in the wake of his flight to Florida March 2 for a sunshine and work vacation.

The President, in a 100 per cent defense of administration officials who have been brought into a Senate subcommittee inquiry into RFC loans, contended that his administration's house is always clean and that history will have to record the verdict on his administration.

The President spoke out sharply late yesterday at a news conference on this naval submarine base.

Those under criticism, including his administrative assistant, Donald S. Dawson, are honorable—all of them are, Mr. Truman said.

Defies Suggestion

And, defying a suggestion by Senator Knowland (R.-Calif.) that he return to Washington and clean house, the President said:

My house is always clean. What are you talking about?

Mr. Truman seized upon the occasion of the news conference—his first since his arrival in Florida, to compare his troubles to those of Lincoln, Washington, Jefferson and other great presidents.

He expressed his disdain for those who have tried to capitalize on testimony critical of Dawson and Mrs. E. Merle Young, wife of an RFC favorite whose name has figured in the inquiry.

To the newspapermen, assembled on the lawn outside the Little White House, Mr. Truman said of his presidency:

"I hope it will be remembered for its sincere effort for world peace, and if we accomplish that, if we get through this era with-

Stabilizer Awaits Next Move of 2

Johnston Says Industry and Labor Must Make Approach to Solution of Situation

Sawyer Makes Bid

Commerce Chief Asks New Restrictions on Consumer Buying

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Government leaders today grew more cheerful over controlling prices, more gloomy over getting a labor-management agreement for controlling wages, and more alarmed over the need for controlling bank loans and installment buying.

That, in brief, was today's situation in the fight to stabilize America's whirling economy. Here are the details:

1. PRICES:

Price Director Michael V. DiSalle told a reporter he now thinks the general level of prices can be stabilized by mid-May or June—that is, 30 to 60 days sooner than the former target date of midsummer.

He said the immediate effect of three big retail and wholesale food orders, due shortly, will be to roll back most food prices and increase very few. (However, many rolled-back food prices would be free to rise again, if farm prices rose.) Incidentally, the three orders have been postponed until next week because of last-minute changes.

Halted in February

The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced last night that the long, long climb of retail food prices halted in the last half of February. In fact these prices in eight large cities actually made a small decline (two-tenths of one per cent), after a big 1.8 per cent rise in the first half of February. Price controllers couldn't claim full credit for the decline, because the sharpest drop was in fresh vegetables and fruits, which are exempt from price controls. But DiSalle gave other evidence for his increasing optimism: for example, average wholesale prices have made no net gain in the last four weeks.

2. WAGES:

Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston sat back and played a waiting game. Temporarily at least, he has ceased his efforts to re-establish a wage stabilization board with a degree of authority that will suit both labor and management. Neither side has approved his last compromise proposal. Now he says—not too cheerfully—that it's up to them to make a move.

Says He's Through

Johnston said he is through making changes in the wage formula that was written by the wage board before it was crippled by the resignation of the labor members. That formula limits raises to 10 per cent above Jan. 15, 1950.

Yesterday, he met leaders of the meat-packing unions in a session that he said was "like a rodeo"—it was so lively—and didn't budge from his decision to hold meat workers to the 10 per cent limit. He said that his answer would be the same in other situations.

One such situation is that of northern cotton-rayon textile mills, where a strike was averted last night but where the agreement is conditional on wage board approval.

3. BANK LOANS and installment buying:

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer told reporters yesterday present restrictions on credit have had no marked effect in combatting inflation. He called for new restric-

Rent Adjustment Operation Ready

Joseph D. McGoldrick, state rent administrator, said Wednesday that final preparations had been completed in all local rent offices to receive applications for rent adjustments under the new rent and eviction regulations which go into effect today in all controlled areas of the state.

Forms have been available at local rent offices since Monday, but applications could not be received until the regulations officially went into effect. During the last several weeks, the local rent office staffs have been briefed on the changes so as to make as smooth as possible the transition from the old to the new regulations.

Five new advisory bulletins dealing with the new provisions have been published by the commission and will be available beginning today at the local rent offices to those concerned with various technical phases of the new regulations.

RFC Abolition Asked by C of C

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Directors of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce today called for abolition of the RFC.

The 45-member board of the business organization adopted a resolution saying:

"Facts disclosed by the Fulbright subcommittee have created uncertainty and distrust concerning RFC procedure. Engaged as we are in a national mobilization effort, we can not afford to have the integrity or general moral level of the government or any of its agencies subject to question."

Senator Fulbright (D.-Ark.) heads a Senate banking subcommittee which has been investigating RFC lending. The group has charged that some directors of the RFC have yielded to influence in making loans.

Sentiment Is Built Up

As a result of the committee's disolosures, considerable sentiment has built up in Congress for killing the RFC.

Fulbright himself has taken the stand that the agency should be continued but reorganized and "cleaned" up.

Some Congress members also argue the RFC is a big help to small business and ought to be continued for that reason.

There is a dispute in the Senate also as to whether the Fulbright committee should continue its RFC investigation. Fulbright has said he wants to bring the inquiry to an early end, but Republicans in particular are calling for its continuation. Chairman Maybank (D.-S.C.) of the full banking committee said he thought it should go on.

Teachers' Pay Measure Passes

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—The Dewey administration's $20,500,000 state aid program to help increase minimum pay schedules for teachers by $500 was accepted today by the Legislature.

The measure won final approval in the Senate on a unanimous vote as the Republican leaders drove through a logjam of bills before final adjournment tonight of the Legislature's 174th regular session.

Opposition to the proposed revision of the 1947 Feinberg salary law had been voiced chiefly by groups in New York city, which would be allocated about $6,800,000 of the $20,500,000 in new state financial aid.

Record Bills in Hopper

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—New York's legislators poured a record number of bills into the Senate and Assembly during the 1951 session, which ends today. At the close of business last night, they had introduced 6,186 bills, compared to 6,135 sponsored by the 1950 lawmakers. Assemblymen sponsored 3,322 of this year's bills. Financial and Commercial

New York, March 16 (AP)—The strongest forward movement since early February today surged through the stock market.

There was no headlong rush, but buying orders poured into the market in a steady stream.

Gains of a dollar were all over the list, and some of the best performers went beyond the two dollar mark.

There was no major area of the market on the downside, but the radio-television division lagged well behind in the advance.

The radio-TVs in contrast were the leaders in the sudden buying spurt that pushed the entire market ahead at the close yesterday.

Most of the utilities were traded chiefly at prices unchanged to a shade higher than the previous close.

Volume of trading kept within bounds slightly under the average pace of the week.

Government bonds strengthened in over the counter dealings. Corporate bonds were steady.

Final Approval Given

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—A bill directing the state public works superintendent to prepare plans and make preliminary surveys for a Hudson river bridge at Newburgh was given final legislative approval in the Senate today. The bill appropriates $50,000 for the preliminary study. Assembly Majority Leader Lee B. Mailler of Cornwall-on-Hudson introduced the measure.

Reds Halt Retreat

Reds off their positions. The cold-steel charge came after 12 hours of inconclusive fighting for the ridgeline.

East of the Second Division, the U. S. Seventh Division battled all day Thursday for a mountain pass. It broke off the action at nightfall.

The U. S. Third Division shoved forward east of battle-wrecked Seoul. Northwest of the newly re-won Republican capital, South Korean patrols clashed with Reds and withdrew.

U. S. Eighth Army headquarters estimated 1,580 Reds were killed or wounded Thursday. That boosted enemy casualties since the start of the allied offensive Jan. 25 to about 172,000.

The U. S. battleship Missouri again led allied warships in attacks on the North Korean east coast.

Spans Destroyed

Direct hits by two three-gun salvos from the "Mighty Mo" destroyed two more spans of a railway bridge hit previously and under reconstruction by Reds near Nanam. The Missouri's 16-inch guns also destroyed a large factory to the north.

Far East air forces bombers and fighters kept up a steady drubbing of Red lines and supply points with bombs and machine gun fire.

General MacArthur cautioned President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea against immediate return of the Republican government to Seoul.

The U.N. commander messaged Rhee that the Reds had not yet suffered a decisive defeat.

MacArthur made no comment on a statement by Rhee that he was asking the U.N. to authorize "bombing the source of Chinese reinforcement in men and material from their sanctuary in Manchuria."

Condition Is Unchanged

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 16 (AP)—The condition of Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, seriously ill at his home here, has remained "substantially the same." Dr. A. B. Smith, physician for the Republican foreign policy leader, said late yesterday that the senator's condition "has not changed in either direction." Vandenberg, 66, underwent a series of operations for tumors in the last two years. He suffered a severe relapse Feb. 26 shortly after returning home from a stay in a local hospital.

years. He plans to take possession on May first and will engage in a fuel and oil distribution business and also conduct a plumbing business, it was reported.

Sale of the property is being negotiated through the John Cole, Inc., brokerage firm of 10 Crown street. The property includes a 4¾-acre tract of land together with the large residence and three car garage now occupied by the State Troopers.

The premises was formerly occupied by the Marz family who conducted the Marz Hotel at the junction of 9-W and the Lake Katrine road for many years. The hotel property on the opposite corner from the residence property was a very prominent hotel in years past. It was destroyed by fire a number of years ago.

The state police now rent the residence and garage as a substation and will be required to vacate the premises. A new location for the police barracks is being sought and various real estate agencies are working on securing of a new location.

The state police barracks, it was stated, must be located on a main highway between Kingston and Saugerties and the principal requirements are that the house be of sufficient size to house an office, teletype room, two or three sleeping rooms and at least a two car garage.

The state police occupied their present location for several years since the policy of maintaining central sub-stations was invoked rather than having the police conduct business from the residence of the officer in charge of the area. It is also required that there be sufficient parking facilities adjacent to the barracks.

At the local sub-station today it was stated that so far as known locally no new location had yet been obtained for the station.

McCardle has been residing at Merrick, L. I., and plans to move to Ulster county and establish his home with his business at Lake Katrine.

RFC Abolition Asked by C of C

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Directors of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce today called for abolition of the RFC.

The 45-member board of the business organization adopted a resolution saying:

"Facts disclosed by the Fulbright subcommittee have created uncertainty and distrust concerning RFC procedure. Engaged as we are in a national mobilization effort, we can not afford to have the integrity or general moral level of the government or any of its agencies subject to question."

Senator Fulbright (D.-Ark.) heads a Senate banking subcommittee which has been investigating RFC lending. The group has charged that some directors of the RFC have yielded to influence in making loans.

Sentiment Is Built Up

As a result of the committee's disclosures, considerable sentiment has built up in Congress for killing the RFC.

Fulbright himself has taken the stand that the agency should be continued but reorganized and "cleaned" up.

Some Congress members also argue the RFC is a big help to small business and ought to be continued for that reason.

There is a dispute in the Senate also as to whether the Fulbright committee should continue its RFC investigation. Fulbright has said he wants to bring the inquiry to an early end, but Republicans in particular are calling for its continuation. Chairman Maybank (D.-S.C.) of the full banking committee said he thought it should go on.

Teachers' Pay Measure Passes

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—The Dewey administration's $20,500,000 state aid program to help increase minimum pay schedules for teachers by $500 was accepted today by the Legislature.

The measure won final approval in the Senate on a unanimous vote as the Republican leaders drove through a logjam of bills before final adjournment tonight of the Legislature's 174th regular session.

Opposition to the proposed revision of the 1947 Feinberg salary law had been voiced chiefly by groups in New York city, which would be allocated about $6,800,000 of the $20,500,000 in new state financial aid.

Record Bills in Hopper

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—New York's legislators poured a record number of bills into the Senate and Assembly during the 1951 session, which ends today. At the close of business last night, they had introduced 6,186 bills, compared to 6,135 sponsored by the 1950 lawmakers. Assemblymen sponsored 3,322 of this year's bills. Senators dropped 2,864 into the hopper. The 1950 total also was a record breaker, as was the 1949.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 16 (AP)—The strongest forward movement since early February today surged through the stock market.

There was no headlong rush, but buying orders poured into the market in a steady stream.

Gains of a dollar were all over the list, and some of the best performers went beyond the two dollar mark.

There was no major area of the market on the downside, but the radio-television division lagged well behind in the advance.

The radio-TVs in contrast were the leaders in the sudden buying spurt that pushed the entire market ahead at the close yesterday.

Most of the utilities were traded chiefly at prices unchanged to a shade higher than the previous close.

Volume of trading kept within bounds slightly under the average pace of the week.

Government bonds strengthened in over the counter dealings. Corporate bonds were steady.

Final Approval Given

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—A bill directing the state public works superintendent to prepare plans and make preliminary surveys for a Hudson river bridge at Newburgh was given final legislative approval in the Senate today. The bill appropriates $50,000 for the preliminary study. Assembly Majority Leader Lee B. Mailler of Cornwall-on-Hudson introduced the measure.

Reds Halt Retreat

Reds off their positions. The cold-steel charge came after 12 hours of inconclusive fighting for the ridgeline.

East of the Second Division, the U. S. Seventh Division battled all day Thursday for a mountain pass. It broke off the action at nightfall.

The U. S. Third Division shoved forward east of battle-wrecked Seoul. Northwest of the newly re-won Republican capital, South Korean patrols clashed with Reds and withdrew.

U. S. Eighth Army headquarters estimated 1,580 Reds were killed or wounded Thursday. That boosted enemy casualties since the start of the allied offensive Jan. 25 to about 172,000.

The U. S. battleship Missouri again led allied warships in attacks on the North Korean east coast.

Spans Destroyed

Direct hits by two three-gun salvos from the "Mighty Mo" destroyed two more spans of a railway bridge hit previously and under reconstruction by Reds near Nanam. The Missouri's 16-inch guns also destroyed a large factory to the north.

Far East air forces bombers and fighters kept up a steady drubbing of Red lines and supply points with bombs and machine gun fire.

General MacArthur cautioned President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea against immediate return of the Republican government to Seoul.

The U.N. commander messaged Rhee that the Reds had not yet suffered a decisive defeat.

MacArthur made no comment on a statement by Rhee that he was asking the U.N. to authorize "bombing the source of Chinese reinforcement in men and material from their sanctuary in Manchuria."

Condition Is Unchanged

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 16 (AP)—The condition of Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, seriously ill at his home here, has remained "substantially the same." Dr. A. B. Smith, physician for the Republican foreign policy leader, said late yesterday that the senator's condition "has not changed in either direction." Vandenberg, 66, underwent a series of operations for tumors in the last two years. He suffered a severe relapse Feb. 26 shortly after returning home from a stay in a local hospital.

Lima has one of the world's most favorable climates, ranging from 60 to 80 degrees.

Police Station Is

years. He plans to take possession on May first and will engage in a fuel and oil distribution business and also conduct a plumbing business, it was reported.

Sale of the property is being negotiated through the John Cole, Inc., brokerage firm of 10 Crown street. The property includes a 4¾-acre tract of land together with the large residence and three car garage now occupied by the State Troopers.

The premises was formerly occupied by the Marz family who conducted the Marz Hotel at the junction of 9-W and the Lake Katrine road for many years. The hotel property on the opposite corner from the residence property was a very prominent hotel in years past. It was destroyed by fire a number of years ago.

The state police now rent the residence and garage as a substation and will be required to vacate the premises. A new location for the police barracks is being sought and various real estate agencies are working on securing of a new location.

The state police barracks, it was stated, must be located on a main highway between Kingston and Saugerties and the principal requirements are that the house be of sufficient size to house an office, teletype room, two or three sleeping rooms and at least a two car garage.

The state police occupied their present location for several years since the policy of maintaining central sub-stations was invoked rather than having the police conduct business from the residence of the officer in charge of the area. It is also required that there be sufficient parking facilities adjacent to the barracks.

At the local sub-station today it was stated that so far as known locally no new location had yet been obtained for the station.

McCardle has been residing at Merrick, L. I., and plans to move to Ulster county and establish his home with his business at Lake Katrine.

Rent Adjustment Operation Ready

Joseph D. McGoldrick, state rent administrator, said Wednesday that final preparations had been completed in all local rent offices to receive applications for rent adjustments under the new rent and eviction regulations which go into effect today in all controlled areas of the state.

Forms have been available at local rent offices since Monday, but applications could not be received until the regulations officially went into effect. During the last several weeks, the local rent office staffs have been briefed on the changes so as to make as smooth as possible the transition from the old to the new regulations.

Five new advisory bulletins dealing with the new provisions have been published by the commission and will be available beginning today at the local rent offices to those concerned with various technical phases of the new regulations.

Nearly 10,000,000 head of livestock are grazed on U. S. public lands part of each year.

RFC Abolition Asked by C of C

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Directors of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce today called for abolition of the RFC.

The 45-member board of the business organization adopted a resolution saying:

"Facts disclosed by the Fulbright subcommittee have created uncertainty and distrust concerning RFC procedure. Engaged as we are in a national mobilization effort, we can not afford to have the integrity or general moral level of the government or any of its agencies subject to question."

Senator Fulbright (D.-Ark.) heads a Senate banking subcommittee which has been investigating RFC lending. The group has charged that some directors of the RFC have yielded to influence in making loans.

Sentiment Is Built Up

As a result of the committee's disclosures, considerable sentiment has built up in Congress for killing the RFC.

Fulbright himself has taken the stand that the agency should be continued but reorganized and "cleaned" up.

Some Congress members also argue the RFC is a big help to small business and ought to be continued for that reason.

There is a dispute in the Senate also as to whether the Fulbright committee should continue its RFC investigation. Fulbright has said he wants to bring the inquiry to an early end, but Republicans in particular are calling for its continuation. Chairman Maybank (D.-S.C.) of the full banking committee said he thought it should go on.

Teachers' Pay Measure Passes

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—The Dewey administration's $20,500,000 state aid program to help increase minimum pay schedules for teachers by $500 was accepted today by the Legislature.

The measure won final approval in the Senate on a unanimous vote as the Republican leaders drove through a logjam of bills before final adjournment tonight of the Legislature's 174th regular session.

Opposition to the proposed revision of the 1947 Feinberg salary law had been voiced chiefly by groups in New York city, which would be allocated about $6,800,000 of the $20,500,000 in new state financial aid.

Record Bills in Hopper

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—New York's legislators poured a record number of bills into the Senate and Assembly during the 1951 session, which ends today. At the close of business last night, they had introduced 6,186 bills, compared to 6,135 sponsored by the 1950 lawmakers. Assemblymen sponsored 3,322 of this year's bills. Senators dropped 2,864 into the hopper. The 1950 total also was a record breaker, as was the 1949.

Financial and Commercial

New York, March 16 (AP)—The strongest forward movement since early February today surged through the stock market.

There was no headlong rush, but buying orders poured into the market in a steady stream.

Gains of a dollar were all over the list, and some of the best performers went beyond the two dollar mark.

There was no major area of the market on the downside, but the radio-television division lagged well behind in the advance.

The radio-TVs in contrast were the leaders in the sudden buying spurt that pushed the entire market ahead at the close yesterday.

Most of the utilities were traded chiefly at prices unchanged to a shade higher than the previous close.

Volume of trading kept within bounds slightly under the average pace of the week.

Government bonds strengthened in over the counter dealings. Corporate bonds were steady.

Final Approval Given

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—A bill directing the state public works superintendent to prepare plans and make preliminary surveys for a Hudson river bridge at Newburgh was given final legislative approval in the Senate today. The bill appropriates $50,000 for the preliminary study. Assembly Majority Leader Lee B. Mailler of Cornwall-on-Hudson introduced the measure.

Reds Halt Retreat

Reds off their positions. The cold-steel charge came after 12 hours of inconclusive fighting for the ridgeline.

East of the Second Division, the U. S. Seventh Division battled all day Thursday for a mountain pass. It broke off the action at nightfall.

The U. S. Third Division shoved forward east of battle-wrecked Seoul. Northwest of the newly re-won Republican capital, South Korean patrols clashed with Reds and withdrew.

U. S. Eighth Army headquarters estimated 1,580 Reds were killed or wounded Thursday. That boosted enemy casualties since the start of the allied offensive Jan. 25 to about 172,000.

The U. S. battleship Missouri again led allied warships in attacks on the North Korean east coast.

Spans Destroyed

Direct hits by two three-gun salvos from the "Mighty Mo" destroyed two more spans of a railway bridge hit previously and under reconstruction by Reds near Nanam. The Missouri's 16-inch guns also destroyed a large factory to the north.

Far East air forces bombers and fighters kept up a steady drubbing of Red lines and supply points with bombs and machine gun fire.

General MacArthur cautioned President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea against immediate return of the Republican government to Seoul.

The U.N. commander messaged Rhee that the Reds had not yet suffered a decisive defeat.

MacArthur made no comment on a statement by Rhee that he was asking the U.N. to authorize "bombing the source of Chinese reinforcement in men and material from their sanctuary in Manchuria."

Condition Is Unchanged

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 16 (AP)—The condition of Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, seriously ill at his home here, has remained "substantially the same." Dr. A. B. Smith, physician for the Republican foreign policy leader, said late yesterday that the senator's condition "has not changed in either direction." Vandenberg, 66, underwent a series of operations for tumors in the last two years. He suffered a severe relapse Feb. 26 shortly after returning home from a stay in a local hospital.

Lima has one of the world's most favorable climates, ranging from 60 to 80 degrees.

Police Station Is

years. He plans to take possession on May first and will engage in a fuel and oil distribution business and also conduct a plumbing business, it was reported.

Sale of the property is being negotiated through the John Cole, Inc., brokerage firm of 10 Crown street. The property includes a 4¾-acre tract of land together with the large residence and three car garage now occupied by the State Troopers.

The premises was formerly occupied by the Marz family who conducted the Marz Hotel at the junction of 9-W and the Lake Katrine road for many years. The hotel property on the opposite corner from the residence property was a very prominent hotel in years past. It was destroyed by fire a number of years ago.

The state police now rent the residence and garage as a substation and will be required to vacate the premises. A new location for the police barracks is being sought and various real estate agencies are working on securing of a new location.

The state police barracks, it was stated, must be located on a main highway between Kingston and Saugerties and the principal requirements are that the house be of sufficient size to house an office, teletype room, two or three sleeping rooms and at least a two car garage.

The state police occupied their present location for several years since the policy of maintaining central sub-stations was invoked rather than having the police conduct business from the residence of the officer in charge of the area. It is also required that there be sufficient parking facilities adjacent to the barracks.

At the local sub-station today it was stated that so far as known locally no new location had yet been obtained for the station.

McCardle has been residing at Merrick, L. I., and plans to move to Ulster county and establish his home with his business at Lake Katrine.

KiwanisChicksAre Expected for 4-H Project March 25

Delivery of 2,600 baby chicks is expected the week of March 25 at the County 4-H Club office at 74 John street, to be distributed to the 49 club youngsters who are participating in this year's 4-H Club-Kiwanis chick project.

The project is one in which the Kiwanis Club members purchase the chicks for the 4-H Club youngsters to raise. In return, after the Ulster County Fair, the youngsters give their sponsors each two dressed birds.

The Kingston Kiwanis club reports 100 per cent participation in the project by its members this year. Dr. John Comstock, chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Conservation, was in charge of arrangements.

Arrival of the chicks during Easter vacation week allows the school children to have time to give proper supervision and care to the birds during the vital first few days they are here, according to Edmund R. Bower, county 4-H agent. The fact that they are arriving a month earlier this year gives a better chance for state fair competition, as the birds will be more mature at that time, Bower said.

The Ulster County Fair premium list recognizes Kiwanis chicks, and Kiwanis members usually participate in a judging contest along with the 4-H Club youngsters. Chicks are distributed on the basis of 25 to each of the younger 4-H members participating; 50 each to the more experienced members, and 100 each to the approximately 12 older poultry youths.

William Damms Is Listed in Escape

A Kingston man, according to the Associated Press, is among six patients from the Wassaic State School for Mental Defectives being hunted by bloodhounds.

The Associated Press story of their escape last night listed William Damms, 18, of Kingston as one of the fugitives.

Kingston police said that they had been asked to join a hunt for a William Damms last February 11, which indicates that last night's escape might have been the second by the same man.

The youths overpowered attendants Floyd Parmalee and Walter Dallow, took their keys and fled into nearby woods, the Associated Press said. Parmalee was knocked unconscious and his assailants took his wallet containing $11. Dallow was badly bruised.

State police set up roadblocks shortly after George Penfield, a supervisor, discovered the break. The men were wearing institution overalls.

They were: John Henry Thomas, 21; Lincoln Johnson, 21; Robert Yeamans, 21; Douglas Stokes, 18, all of New York city, and William Damms, 18, of Kingston, and Donald Sniffen of Ossining.

Officials said Thomas, a 221-pounder, was "dangerous" and that he apparently used a homemade blackjack to slug the attendants.

KiwanisChicksAre Expected for 4-H Project March 25

Delivery of 2,600 baby chicks is expected the week of March 25 at the County 4-H Club office at 74 John street, to be distributed to the 49 club youngsters who are participating in this year's 4-H Club-Kiwanis chick project.

The project is one in which the Kiwanis Club members purchase the chicks for the 4-H Club youngsters to raise. In return, after the Ulster County Fair, the youngsters give their sponsors each two dressed birds.

The Kingston Kiwanis club reports 100 per cent participation in the project by its members this year. Dr. John Comstock, chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Conservation, was in charge of arrangements.

Arrival of the chicks during Easter vacation week allows the school children to have time to give proper supervision and care to the birds during the vital first few days they are here, according to Edmund R. Bower, county 4-H agent. The fact that they are arriving a month earlier this year gives a better chance for state fair competition, as the birds will be more mature at that time, Bower said.

The Ulster County Fair premium list recognizes Kiwanis chicks, and Kiwanis members usually participate in a judging contest along with the 4-H Club youngsters. Chicks are distributed on the basis of 25 to each of the younger 4-H members participating; 50 each to the more experienced members, and 100 each to the approximately 12 older poultry youths.

'IS ANYTHING WRONG IN THAT?'

From the moment the R.F.C. disclosures began hitting the headlines, the words "illegal" and "improper" have enjoyed the currency of popular songs.

White House attaches, R.F.C. officials, senators, these and others have time and again defended the exercise of pressure and influence on the ground that what they did was not illegal. Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, pursuing the inquiry, has often insisted that while this might be so, their actions were nevertheless improper.

Faced with this moral gauge, the principals in the R.F.C. story have then usually gone on to assert that they have done nothing improper, either.

There is no need here to discuss the issue of illegality. If any be demonstrated, it is a matter for the courts and that's that. What is of much graver concern to the nation is the strange idea so many of our public officials seem to have of what is proper and what is improper.

An examiner for R.F.C. sees no harm in accepting free hospitality from a Florida hotel owner who has won an R.F.C. loan. Senator Murray, Montana Democrat, says it's quite "routine" for lawmakers to plug loans for applicants who happen to be constituents, even when a senator's son is the applicant's lawyer.

White House personnel feel utterly free about accepting favors of all kinds, as well as dispensing them. Maj.-Gen. Harry Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, doesn't have a single qualm whether he's taking in deep freezers or getting a special law pushed through Congress to allow entry from Australia of a woman acquaintance he wants as secretary.

In all these instances, the principals have one standard reply: "Is there anything wrong in that?"

That they even find it necessary to ask the question tells us how insensible many public men have become to any lofty code of propriety in official life. By any reasonable measure, no man who occupies a position of responsibility in government ought either to accept or grant special favors to anyone.

There was a time when such an elementary ethical standard was universally revered and widedly observed. In the Washington of 1951, it appears as outmoded as celluloid collars and knee-length bathing suits.

Offenses against the moral code today have tended to haul the national government down to the level of petty, tin-horn courthouse politics. They have robbed the White House and the presidency of dignity. They have made Washington life spineless, boneless—a shambles of competing influences and pressures and friendships in which moral values are buried underfoot.

Only one thing is still lacking. No one has yet put vending machines into the White House, the Capitol and assorted government halls to dispense favors easily, mechanically, and for a fixed price. "Is there anything wrong in that?"

VOTES IN A NAME

To the old question, "What's in a name?" it has frequently been answered that there may be votes in it. Experience has shown that an election candidate whose name is familiar to many persons is almost a sure winner over someone relatively unknown, and that he need not necessarily have a reputation for ability. Mere familiarity does it.

W. F. Fenton, clerk of an Ohio election board, made a further test. He made up a series of dummy ballots and submitted them to some 1,500 school students in a mock election. The names were all ficticious. He found that names with a familiar ring or pleasing connotation were consistent winners, and that the position on the ballot also influenced the choice. Names at the top of their list did better than those in second and third places.

This was a small test and perhaps it doesn't mean much. Added to the fact that dead men have sometimes been elected to office, it takes on more meaning. We could be a little more thoughtful in our exercise of the ballot. Office-holders, after all, should be chosen on something more signifiant than the sound of their names or their place on the ballot.

It is commonly said that an honest man is hard to find. Sometimes it may be even harder to get hold of a dishonest one.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE RETURN OF SUMNER WELLES

I received a circular letter announcing the return of Sumner Welles to active political life. It came as a surprise because it seemed as though he were in permanent retirement.

Mr. Welles's career was in the State Department in the hey-day of the wild men whom Senator Joe McCarthy has been denouncing as much for their habits as for their policies. He returns not to public office but as chairman of a new organization now being launched called "The First Freedom International," which is a curious title. What is the importance of the words, "the first," which are printed in smaller type? There have been many international organizations which have advocated freedom. Also, the title is reminiscent of the Second International of the Social Democrats, the Third International of Stalin and the Fourth International of Trotzky.

However, this is to be an anti-Communist international and is organized, it says, because others at work are failing. The circular says:

". . . Freedom is the real revolution—not Soviet tyranny—and the time is overdue for us to take the initiative on its behalf, on a scale hitherto unattempted."

And to achieve this "real revolution" a catch-all committee is formed which includes all sorts of diametrically opposed individuals, from Republicans to Social Democrats up and down the gamut of ideas. How any Republican can fight communism in the company of a Social Democrat, or how a religious leader can tie up with a Marxist who only objects to Stalin but not to Marxism, is difficult to analyze. Yet this organizing committee includes many distinguished and important names.

I picked at random a few and telephoned and I put the query this way: "I see you're serving on a committee under the chairmanship of Sumner Welles." Each seemed to show concern, as though I had presented him with a subpoena from the McCarran Committee. Each indicated that he had no knowledge that he had been asked to serve in this capacity.

I then gave the name of the organization and described its character. From some this got a response; from others it did not. In a word, there are always persons who lend their names to committee, petitions, open letters.

The card which accompanies this letter reads:

"I am happy to give my name without obligation as a member of the organizing committee of Freedom International."

Quite how one lends his name to a public cause "without obligation" is hard to understand. That is one of the most usual excuses given by those who joined Communist front organizations: They did not know what was involved; they signed without obligation.

Nonsense! When a man signs his name to anything, he takes on an obligation. He is responsible for the entire program of that organization. He is responsible for its conduct. He is responsible for its officials. Once he lends his name, he cannot dodge the fact that he did so. The record stands unless he publicly repudiates it. Mature men and women are expected to be responsible for their decisions.

The name-signers have strengthened the Communists over the past years and I suppose "The First Freedom International," headed by Sumner Welles, is copying their methods. But what does such signature-hunting really accomplish, unless each individual who signs up is devoted to the cause and is ready to stand or fall by it? But this organization which Sumner Wells heads wants signatures "without obligation."

No movement so founded can be of any use in the fight against Communists in this country or in the world. Nor do I believe that Sumner Welles can now inspire confidence in anyone. Look at his career! He managed the State Department when Alger Hiss and his gang made free there. He managed the State Department when the fateful China policy was formed—a policy which has cost us 60,000 casualties already.

What did Welles do to eliminate Communists from the State Department when he was its effective boss? What did he do to drive out the homosexuals? What will this organization have to say about his management of the State Department when the McCarran Committee's investigations into the I.P.R., about which I have been writing, begin to attract public attention?

I for one am not joining up with this business.

That Body of Yours

COMMON COLD AND ALLERGIC COLD

There is more time spent in trying to find the cause of the common cold than of any other ailment except, perhaps, cancer. That a virus—a very tiny organism—is the cause or one of the causes, is admitted.

All colds are not alike, and there is, therefore, controversy among physicians as to whether the common head cold is caused by allergy or by infection. We all know that some of these colds last only a few hours or a day or two at most and remain in the head, while others last for a week and there is coughing with accumulation of mucus in nose and throat.

Generally speaking, the cold that lasts only a short time is believed due to allergy or sensitiveness to certain substances—dust, feathers, furs, foods—and the cold lasting the week or more is a genuine infection.

In his book "Clinical Allergy," Dr. Louis Tuft states: "Colds are not acute infective colds unless they begin with an irritation in the nose, obstruction in the nose, general tiredness and weakness, dicharge from the nose, at first a thin mucus and later becoming like pus, and there is a rise in temperature. The thick mucus with pus and a rise in temperature are considered infection.

"Colds beginning with sneezing, followed by a water discharge from the nose, obstruction of the nose, perhaps a slight cough, with no fever, are more likely to be due to allergy—allergic rhinitis, due to allergy or sensitiveness to various substances, possibly associated with asthma."

The time of the attack of the allergy or asthma cold is important. If it occurs at night there may be something in the bedroom—dust, talcum powder, feathers from pillows—causing the symptoms, whereas if the attack occurs shortly after a meal, food allergy is likely the cause. Remember that the genuine common cold may begin with nose irritation just as with the allergic cold, but the genuine common cold penetrates you, the discharge from nose is thick, there is cough and profuse spitting, and there is fever or rise in temperature.

A final point is that in the allergic cold, the lining of the nose is pale while in the real or common cold, the lining of the nose is red.

D-Day for Uncle Joe

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Ed. Note: Drew Pearson is on a flying tour of Europe and the Middle East, surveying the world situation.)

Rome.—The inside fact about the new armament program just voted by the Italian Parliament is that it was put across only after some heroic backstage wire-pulling which few people, even those in official life, know about. The behind-the-scenes story illustrates what terrific uphill obstacles the United States faces in both rearming Europe and inspiring internal reforms over here.

The rearmament move really began when Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza, a great friend of the United States, became worried about the bad press Italy was getting in the United States and asked some of his American newspaper friends about it. Their reply was "Don't you realize that American boys are dying in Korea, that we all face possible war with Russia, yet Italy is doing nothing about it? The American people are getting tired of protecting the rest of the world."

Rearmament was not in Sforza's bailiwick. Furthermore, it was not in the bailiwick of certain Americans connected with the Marshall Plan who talked to Sforza about rearmament. Both were on delicate ground because he risked offending Italian generals; Marshall Plan officials because they risked offending U. S. Ambassador James Dunn, who follows the old-fashioned diplomatic theory that you must not jog the elbow of foreign governments regarding domestic policies and he was reluctant to crack down on the snail-like pace of Italian rearmament.

However, Sforza finally came up with a 26-page rearmament plan which was so confidential that it was given to ECA officials in the Rome railroad station by Sforza's deputy, so they wouldn't be seen together.

The ECA official sent back word that the proposed plan chiefly called for more expenditures by the already overburdened American taxpayer and that any real Italian rearmament plan must also provide for Italian sacrifices. More conferences followed, out of which was finally evolved the $400,000,000 arms bill okayed by the Italian Parliament last week.

Money Wasted By Army

The new Italian arms can bring about a complete end of Communism here, provided Italy is able to get all-too-scarce steel, aluminum and copper from the United States. For the new program should reactivate the northern automobile and tank factories, which have been virtually idle since the war, and wipe out Italian unemployment—the chief cause of communism.

However, the inside fact is a lot of money also will be wasted under Italian armament. The army, for instance, still maintains huge farms, theoretically for breeding cavalry horses. Though the cavalry has long since passed from use, the army clique refuses to relinquish its vast landed estates and Minister of Defense Randolfo Pacciardi, a devotee of David Dubinsky and the International Ladies Garment Workers, hasn't dared to buck the military hierarchy to bring about needed economies. In fact, Pacciardi has quietly appealed to American military advisers to pressure him for these economies.

This illustrates in Italian bureaucracy something which would make Senator Byrd faint. Commerce Minister Ivan Matteo Lombardo, commenting privately on this bureaucracy, once remarked "I have 13 stenographers. If I could fire all but three of them I could get some work done, but with 13 they just get in each other's way."

This bureaucracy has piled up so many government servants that 86 per cent of the social insurance paid in by the workers goes to pay for government administration. Repeatedly, since the war, the workers have had their premium payments for social security raised but not once have their insurance benefits been raised. The increase goes to pay bureaucrats' salaries'

Gervasi's Work Effective

A few weeks before General Eisenhower's scheduled visit to Italy, the walls of Rome were covered with posters reading "Ike, go home" plus other uncomplimentary remarks too filthy to be repeated here. Obviously this was the work of the Communists but since the walls of Rome are the television sets of the Italian people the posters had their effect and nothing was being done to counteract them.

Finally, while the American Embassy hesitated, Frank Gervasi, the live-wire chief of ECA information, got busy. He organized a committee of pro-American Italians which, working backstage with the ECA, concocted some of the most effective posters ever seen in Italy.

Jean Belliard, son-in-law of Edgar Ansel Mowrer and now French attache on Eisenhower's staff, conceived one brilliant idea—namely, quoting from the Moscow press at the time Eisenhower liberated Europe. One set of posters therefore featured the hammer and sickle with quotes from Izvestia and Pravda hailing Ike as a great liberator. At the bottom of the poster was the date: May, 1945. Other posters featured Ike in his Columbia University cap and gown, regretfully laying aside his books to don an outgrown uniform.

Overnight, squads organized by the ECA went out, tore down the Communist posters and put up the new set. Few people had any idea who inspired the overnight change. In fact, gracious Ambassador Dunn, riding through Rome's streets the next day, remarked, "you see what the Italian people do when you leave them alone?"

For some months Gervasi, a former Hearst newspaperman and roving correspondent for Collier's, has been putting new life into American propaganda in Italy. Thanks to him, millions of Italian people now know what the Marshall Plan has brought to them. Three of his publications are among the most ingenious in Europe. One is a comic magazine called "The Story of America" which is sold on newsstands weekly and is lapped up by the Italian public.

Another is "Il Campi," or "The Land," a monthly magazine for farmers which is increasing Italian agricultural output and at the same time is getting across the fact that the United States has extended great help to Italy. The third is called "Illustrated Worker," a poor man's Collier's, aimed at weaning labor away from the Communists. The last-named is so popular that, in six months, it has reached a newsstand circulation of 200,000 and soon will become a paying proposition.

Gervasi's ingenuity has done a great deal to give communism its heavy setbacks in Italy. Yet, when plans for future American publicity here were recently submitted to the American embassy, Ambassador Dunn carefully struck out Gervasi's proposed plans.

Unless U. S. Leadership in U.N. Is Shown, Military Force Will Be Put in Clamps

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 16—American leadership in the United Nations will have to be exerted promptly if the military expedition now in Korea is not to become enmeshed in a strait jacket of political inhibitions.

The spectacle of a military force hemmed in by political considerations in the midst of a battle is unprecedented in history — and what is worse, the considerations which are influencing the outcome are hidden from view.

When General MacArthur, in his cabled answer to the question propounded by Hugh Baillie of the United Press, states to all the world that neither the 38th Parallel nor any other line across the peninsula favors "positional warfare," he is, in effect, declaring that there must be a continuous war of maneuver, "unless the situation is radically altered." He adds that the "problem involved requires more fundamental decisions than are within my authority or responsibility to make as the military commander—decisions which must not ignore the heavy cost in allied blood which a protracted and indecisive campaign would entail."

The general has always chosen his words carefully in answering queries, and there is vast significance in the idea he has sought to convey by his latest message. For unquestionably, if there is no place to take up a position defensively on any line across the Korean peninsula, the only two things left to do are to continue indefinitely an indecisive war of maneuver or to push ahead to the Yalu river with enough troops and air bombardment of bases across the Manchurian border to protect our advancing armies.

What General MacArthur is saying, from his long experience as a strategist, is that the offensive he undertook last November was logical on the assumption that Red China would stay out but that, without the right to strike at the enemy's bases and supply lines across the Manchurian border, it would be a mistake now to try this. He implies, moreover, that the U.N. cannot indefinitely subject allied armies in Korea to a long war without defining more explicitly its objectives and without removing some of the barriers that stand between the U.N. forces and ultimate victory—namely, as he calls it, "The accomplishment of our mission in the unification of Korea."

The principal barrier is the supposed unwillingness of a majority of the U.N. to permit U.N. forces to achieve their real objective, which is to drive the Red Chinese out of Korea even if it means fighting the Communists north as well as south of the Yalu river. Just why Red Chinese troops cannot be killed north of the boundary but can be killed in large numbers south of that line is inexplicable.

It is important also to bear in mind that, if permission to bomb bases north of the Manchurian border is not to be granted by the U.N., then our forces must remain far enough south of the Yalu river to allow for a field of fire for our airplanes against enemy supply lines. This is but another way of saying that, without the right to bombard across the Manchurian boundary, the U.N. forces are committed indefinitely to what General MacArthur calls a war of maneuver.

What then will happen? Must the U.N. forces stay there for months and perhaps years? The answer will be forthcoming in a few weeks when the snow thaws and the mud bogs down the movements of troops and when the enemy will be able to move without so much fear of air attack, inasmuch as flying weather gets bad seasonally soon. A decision will come then and if the Red Chinese get a beating, peace may ensue.

The viewpoint held here in high quarters is that Red China already has been checked in southeast Asia, in Formosa, and in Tibet and cannot indefinitely keep up the fight in Korea and that, before the end of 1951, another negotiation will develop on Chinese initiative and that then a settlement which will vindicate the U.N. will be forthcoming. But, until that time, it is important that no obstacles be placed in the way of General MacArthur's forces to move up and down across the 38th Parallel and even beyond within safe range of his protecting air support.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is evidence that General Mark Clark was a better soldier than General Eisenhower in World War 2. Eisenhower obviously is a candidate for the presidency. He has nothing to stand on but his military record. The crowning glory of that record was the successful prosecution of Franklin D. Roosevelt's horrible folly in handing over the Balkans and Poland to Soviet Russia. General Clark tells us that he immediately recognized the error of this course. Eisenhower apparently never has seen the error.

He has insisted that in a "democracy" the political phases of great decisions in war are the business of the civil government, not the soldiers. He thinks our nation is a democracy. He does not know that the constitution specifies that the United States of America should be a union of republics.

There is a rising clamor of propaganda in favor of Eisenhower for president in 1952. I am instinctively suspicious of any candidate or proposition, particularly in relation to European affairs, having the indorsement of the New York Herald Tribune. Belatedly, and, as far as I am concerned, without a chance of success, the Herald Tribune has been trying to pose as a campaigner against the Communist treason. Against the record of its book reviewing departments, daily and Sunday, and of its affection for Joe Barnes, the old protege of Frederick Vanderbilt Field, I am skeptical and look for motives behind the Herald Tribune's sudden protestations. For a long time, Barnes was one of the most influential men in the councils of the H-T. It has never turned its back on him.

This is my country and if I can prevent it I will not let this questionable New York paper bull through to nomination and election a president who might be so bad that we might never have a chance to elect another.

If Eisenhower successfully stands inspection on his record I want him for president notwithstanding his indorsement by the Herald-Tribune. Not even an indorsement from China-boy Henry Luce of the Time-Life axis, a political queerie as weird as Luce's wife, who publicly prostrated herself before La Boca Grande last year, could disqualify Eisenhower with me if his record qualified him. But neither will I be deceived by the propaganda now flowing out of Washington in tainted political essays offered as objective observations which hollers up Ike without telling us what he stands for. The same propaganda tries to smear Taft with clumsy references to "McCarthyism" without explaining what that term means. This is, on the very face of things, a plot to get Senator McCarthy and vindicate the traitors whom he has thoroughly exposed. It is a plot to discredit Taft by false representations. Taft is a Republican. So is McCarthy. To insinuate, as fifth columnists in the Republican party and rascals in the Washington press corps have been doing, that there is anything wrong in political cooperation between these two uncompromising Republican patriots, is to arouse caution about their own man.

Their man is Eisenhower.

He was one of the authors of a failure of colossal import which in less than six years has brought us to war with Soviet Russia. In five years more, that failure might liquidate the republic. This propaganda follows the strange party line of a shapeless political ism having no integrity nor even a headquarters as yet.

With the purest motives, Eisenhower is invited to declare himself. Here is a president of one of our greatest universities, a man of comparatively petty education himself, a man who showed no urgent determination to clean out Communists in the teaching staff, a man who let the fatuous Roosevelt divert our army from the Balkans for the benefit of So-

'IS ANYTHING WRONG IN THAT?'

From the moment the R.F.C. disclosures began hitting the headlines, the words "illegal" and "improper" have enjoyed the currency of popular songs.

White House attaches, R.F.C. officials, senators, these and others have time and again defended the exercise of pressure and influence on the ground that what they did was not illegal. Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, pursuing the inquiry, has often insisted that while this might be so, their actions were nevertheless improper.

Faced with this moral gauge, the principals in the R.F.C. story have then usually gone on to assert that they have done nothing improper, either.

There is no need here to discuss the issue of illegality. If any be demonstrated, it is a matter for the courts and that's that. What is of much graver concern to the nation is the strange idea so many of our public officials seem to have of what is proper and what is improper.

An examiner for R.F.C. sees no harm in accepting free hospitality from a Florida hotel owner who has won an R.F.C. loan. Senator Murray, Montana Democrat, says it's quite "routine" for lawmakers to plug loans for applicants who happen to be constituents, even when a senator's son is the applicant's lawyer.

White House personnel feel utterly free about accepting favors of all kinds, as well as dispensing them. Maj.-Gen. Harry Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, doesn't have a single qualm whether he's taking in deep freezers or getting a special law pushed through Congress to allow entry from Australia of a woman acquaintance he wants as secretary.

In all these instances, the principals have one standard reply: "Is there anything wrong in that?"

That they even find it necessary to ask the question tells us how insensible many public men have become to any lofty code of propriety in official life. By any reasonable measure, no man who occupies a position of responsibility in government ought either to accept or grant special favors to anyone.

There was a time when such an elementary ethical standard was universally revered and widedly observed. In the Washington of 1951, it appears as outmoded as celluloid collars and knee-length bathing suits.

Offenses against the moral code today have tended to haul the national government down to the level of petty, tin-horn courthouse politics. They have robbed the White House and the presidency of dignity. They have made Washington life spineless, boneless—a shambles of competing influences and pressures and friendships in which moral values are buried underfoot.

Only one thing is still lacking. No one has yet put vending machines into the White House, the Capitol and assorted government halls to dispense favors easily, mechanically, and for a fixed price. "Is there anything wrong in that?"

VOTES IN A NAME

To the old question, "What's in a name?" it has frequently been answered that there may be votes in it. Experience has shown that an election candidate whose name is familiar to many persons is almost a sure winner over someone relatively unknown, and that he need not necessarily have a reputation for ability. Mere familiarity does it.

W. F. Fenton, clerk of an Ohio election board, made a further test. He made up a series of dummy ballots and submitted them to some 1,500 school students in a mock election. The names were all ficticious. He found that names with a familiar ring or pleasing connotation were consistent winners, and that the position on the ballot also influenced the choice. Names at the top of their list did better than those in second and third places.

This was a small test and perhaps it doesn't mean much. Added to the fact that dead men have sometimes been elected to office, it takes on more meaning. We could be a little more thoughtful in our exercise of the ballot. Office-holders, after all, should be chosen on something more signifiant than the sound of their names or their place on the ballot.

It is commonly said that an honest man is hard to find. Sometimes it may be even harder to get hold of a dishonest one.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE RETURN OF SUMNER WELLES

I received a circular letter announcing the return of Sumner Welles to active political life. It came as a surprise because it seemed as though he were in permanent retirement.

Mr. Welles's career was in the State Department in the hey-day of the wild men whom Senator Joe McCarthy has been denouncing as much for their habits as for their policies. He returns not to public office but as chairman of a new organization now being launched called "The First Freedom International," which is a curious title. What is the importance of the words, "the first," which are printed in smaller type? There have been many international organizations which have advocated freedom. Also, the title is reminiscent of the Second International of the Social Democrats, the Third International of Stalin and the Fourth International of Trotzky.

However, this is to be an anti-Communist international and is organized, it says, because others at work are failing. The circular says:

". . . Freedom is the real revolution—not Soviet tyranny—and the time is overdue for us to take the initiative on its behalf, on a scale hitherto unattempted."

And to achieve this "real revolution" a catch-all committee is formed which includes all sorts of diametrically opposed individuals, from Republicans to Social Democrats up and down the gamut of ideas. How any Republican can fight communism in the company of a Social Democrat, or how a religious leader can tie up with a Marxist who only objects to Stalin but not to Marxism, is difficult to analyze. Yet this organizing committee includes many distinguished and important names.

I picked at random a few and telephoned and I put the query this way: "I see you're serving on a committee under the chairmanship of Sumner Welles." Each seemed to show concern, as though I had presented him with a subpoena from the McCarran Committee. Each indicated that he had no knowledge that he had been asked to serve in this capacity.

I then gave the name of the organization and described its character. From some this got a response; from others it did not. In a word, there are always persons who lend their names to committee, petitions, open letters.

The card which accompanies this letter reads:

"I am happy to give my name without obligation as a member of the organizing committee of Freedom International."

Quite how one lends his name to a public cause "without obligation" is hard to understand. That is one of the most usual excuses given by those who joined Communist front organizations: They did not know what was involved; they signed without obligation.

Nonsense! When a man signs his name to anything, he takes on an obligation. He is responsible for the entire program of that organization. He is responsible for its conduct. He is responsible for its officials. Once he lends his name, he cannot dodge the fact that he did so. The record stands unless he publicly repudiates it. Mature men and women are expected to be responsible for their decisions.

The name-signers have strengthened the Communists over the past years and I suppose "The First Freedom International," headed by Sumner Welles, is copying their methods. But what does such signature-hunting really accomplish, unless each individual who signs up is devoted to the cause and is ready to stand or fall by it? But this organization which Sumner Wells heads wants signatures "without obligation."

No movement so founded can be of any use in the fight against Communists in this country or in the world. Nor do I believe that Sumner Welles can now inspire confidence in anyone. Look at his career! He managed the State Department when Alger Hiss and his gang made free there. He managed the State Department when the fateful China policy was formed—a policy which has cost us 60,000 casualties already.

What did Welles do to eliminate Communists from the State Department when he was its effective boss? What did he do to drive out the homosexuals? What will this organization have to say about his management of the State Department when the McCarran Committee's investigations into the I.P.R., about which I have been writing, begin to attract public attention?

I for one am not joining up with this business.

That Body of Yours

COMMON COLD AND ALLERGIC COLD

There is more time spent in trying to find the cause of the common cold than of any other ailment except, perhaps, cancer. That a virus—a very tiny organism—is the cause or one of the causes, is admitted.

All colds are not alike, and there is, therefore, controversy among physicians as to whether the common head cold is caused by allergy or by infection. We all know that some of these colds last only a few hours or a day or two at most and remain in the head, while others last for a week and there is coughing with accumulation of mucus in nose and throat.

Generally speaking, the cold that lasts only a short time is believed due to allergy or sensitiveness to certain substances—dust, feathers, furs, foods—and the cold lasting the week or more is a genuine infection.

In his book "Clinical Allergy," Dr. Louis Tuft states: "Colds are not acute infective colds unless they begin with an irritation in the nose, obstruction in the nose, general tiredness and weakness, dicharge from the nose, at first a thin mucus and later becoming like pus, and there is a rise in temperature. The thick mucus with pus and a rise in temperature are considered infection.

"Colds beginning with sneezing, followed by a water discharge from the nose, obstruction of the nose, perhaps a slight cough, with no fever, are more likely to be due to allergy—allergic rhinitis, due to allergy or sensitiveness to various substances, possibly associated with asthma."

The time of the attack of the allergy or asthma cold is important. If it occurs at night there may be something in the bedroom—dust, talcum powder, feathers from pillows—causing the symptoms, whereas if the attack occurs shortly after a meal, food allergy is likely the cause. Remember that the genuine common cold may begin with nose irritation just as with the allergic cold, but the genuine common cold penetrates you, the discharge from nose is thick, there is cough and profuse spitting, and there is fever or rise in temperature.

A final point is that in the allergic cold, the lining of the nose is pale while in the real or common cold, the lining of the nose is red.

D-Day for Uncle Joe

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Ed. Note: Drew Pearson is on a flying tour of Europe and the Middle East, surveying the world situation.)

Rome.—The inside fact about the new armament program just voted by the Italian Parliament is that it was put across only after some heroic backstage wire-pulling which few people, even those in official life, know about. The behind-the-scenes story illustrates what terrific uphill obstacles the United States faces in both rearming Europe and inspiring internal reforms over here.

The rearmament move really began when Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza, a great friend of the United States, became worried about the bad press Italy was getting in the United States and asked some of his American newspaper friends about it. Their reply was "Don't you realize that American boys are dying in Korea, that we all face possible war with Russia, yet Italy is doing nothing about it? The American people are getting tired of protecting the rest of the world."

Rearmament was not in Sforza's bailiwick. Furthermore, it was not in the bailiwick of certain Americans connected with the Marshall Plan who talked to Sforza about rearmament. Both were on delicate ground because he risked offending Italian generals; Marshall Plan officials because they risked offending U. S. However, Sforza finally came up with a 26-page rearmament plan which was so confidential that it was given to ECA officials in the Rome railroad station by Sforza's deputy, so they wouldn't be seen together.

The ECA official sent back word that the proposed plan chiefly called for more expenditures by the already overburdened American taxpayer and that any real Italian rearmament plan must also provide for Italian sacrifices. Unless U. S. Leadership in U.N. Is Shown, Military Force Will Be Put in Clamps

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 16—American leadership in the United Nations will have to be exerted promptly if the military expedition now in Korea is not to become enmeshed in a strait jacket of political inhibitions.

The spectacle of a military force hemmed in by political considerations in the midst of a battle is unprecedented in history — and what is worse, the considerations which are influencing the outcome are hidden from view.

When General MacArthur, in his cabled answer to the question propounded by Hugh Baillie of the United Press, states to all the world that neither the 38th Parallel nor any other line across the peninsula favors "positional warfare," he is, in effect, declaring that there must be a continuous war of maneuver, "unless the situation is radically altered." He adds that the "problem involved requires more fundamental decisions than are within my authority or responsibility to make as the military commander—decisions which must not ignore the heavy cost in allied blood which a protracted and indecisive campaign would entail."

The general has always chosen his words carefully in answering queries, and there is vast significance in the idea he has sought to convey by his latest message. For unquestionably, if there is no place to take up a position defensively on any line across the Korean peninsula, the only two things left to do are to continue indefinitely an indecisive war of maneuver or to push ahead to the Yalu river with enough troops and air bombardment of bases across the Manchurian border to protect our advancing armies.

What General MacArthur is saying, from his long experience as a strategist, is that the offensive he undertook last November was logical on the assumption that Red China would stay out but that, without the right to strike at the enemy's bases and supply lines across the Manchurian border, it would be a mistake now to try this. He implies, moreover, that the U.N. cannot indefinitely subject allied armies in Korea to a long war without defining more explicitly its objectives and without removing some of the barriers that stand between the U.N. forces and ultimate victory—namely, as he calls it, "The accomplishment of our mission in the unification of Korea."

The principal barrier is the supposed unwillingness of a majority of the U.N. to permit U.N. forces to achieve their real objective, which is to drive the Red Chinese out of Korea even if it means fighting the Communists north as well as south of the Yalu river. Just why Red Chinese troops cannot be killed north of the boundary but can be killed in large numbers south of that line is inexplicable.

It is important also to bear in mind that, if permission to bomb bases north of the Manchurian border is not to be granted by the U.N., then our forces must remain far enough south of the Yalu river to allow for a field of fire for our airplanes against enemy supply lines. This is but another way of saying that, without the right to bombard across the Manchurian boundary, the U.N. forces are committed indefinitely to what General MacArthur calls a war of maneuver.

What then will happen? Must the U.N. forces stay there for months and perhaps years? The answer will be forthcoming in a few weeks when the snow thaws and the mud bogs down the movements of troops and when the enemy will be able to move without so much fear of air attack, inasmuch as flying weather gets bad reasonably soon. A decision will come then and if the Red Chinese get a beating, peace may ensue.

The viewpoint held here in high quarters is that Red China already has been checked in southeast Asia, in Formosa, and in Tibet and cannot indefinitely keep up the fight in Korea and that, before the end of 1951, another negotiation will develop on Chinese initiative and that then a settlement which will vindicate the U.N. will be forthcoming. But, until that time, it is important that no obstacles be placed in the way of General MacArthur's forces to move up and down across the 38th Parallel and even beyond within safe range of his protecting air support.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is evidence that General Mark Clark was a better soldier than General Eisenhower in World War 2. Eisenhower obviously is a candidate for the presidency. He has nothing to stand on but his military record. The crowning glory of that record was the successful prosecution of Franklin D. Roosevelt's horrible folly in handing over the Balkans and Poland to Soviet Russia. General Clark tells us that he immediately recognized the error of this course. Eisenhower apparently never has seen the error.

He has insisted that in a "democracy" the political phases of great decisions in war are the business of the civil government, not the soldiers. He thinks our nation is a democracy. He does not know that the constitution specifies that the United States of America should be a union of republics.

There is a rising clamor of propaganda in favor of Eisenhower for president in 1952. I am instinctively suspicious of any candidate or proposition, particularly in relation to European affairs, having the indorsement of the New York Herald Tribune. Belatedly, and, as far as I am concerned, without a chance of success, the Herald Tribune has been trying to pose as a campaigner against the Communist treason. Against the record of its book reviewing departments, daily and Sunday, and of its affection for Joe Barnes, the old protege of Frederick Vanderbilt Field, I am skeptical and look for motives behind the Herald Tribune's sudden protestations. For a long time, Barnes was one of the most influential men in the councils of the H-T. It has never turned its back on him.

This is my country and if I can prevent it I will not let this questionable New York paper bull through to nomination and election a president who might be so bad that we might never have a chance to elect another.

If Eisenhower successfully stands inspection on his record I want him (or president notwithstanding his indorsement by the Herald-Tribune. Not even an indorsement from China-boy Henry Luce of the Time-Life axis, a political queerie as weird as Luce's wife, who publicly prostrated herself before La Boca Grande last year, could disqualify Eisenhower with me if his record qualified him. But neither will I be deceived by the propaganda now flowing out of Washington in tainted political essays offered as objective observations which hollers up Ike without teling us what he stands for. The same propaganda tries to smear Taft with clumsy references to "McCarthyism" without explaining what that term means. This is, on the very face of things, a plot to get Senator McCarthy and vindicate the traitors whom he has thoroughly exposed. It is a plot to discredit Taft by false representations. Taft is a Republican. So is McCarthy. To insinuate, as fifth columnists in the Republican party and rascals in the Washington press corps have been doing, that there is anything wrong in political cooperation between these two uncompromising Republican patriots, is to arouse caution about their own man.

Their man is Eisenhower.

He was one of the authors of a failure of colossal import which in less than six years has brought us to war with Soviet Russia. In five years more, that failure might liquidate the republic. This propaganda follows the strange party line of a shapeless political ism having no integrity nor even a headquarters as yet.

With the purest motives, Eisenhower is invited to declare himself. Here is a president of one of our greatest universities, a man of comparatively petty education himself, a man who showed no urgent determination to clean out Communists in the teaching staff, a man who let the fatuous Roosevelt divert our army from the Balkans for the benefit of So-

'IS ANYTHING WRONG IN THAT?'

From the moment the R.F.C. disclosures began hitting the headlines, the words "illegal" and "improper" have enjoyed the currency of popular songs.

White House attaches, R.F.C. officials, senators, these and others have time and again defended the exercise of pressure and influence on the ground that what they did was not illegal. Senator Fulbright of Arkansas, pursuing the inquiry, has often insisted that while this might be so, their actions were nevertheless improper.

Faced with this moral gauge, the principals in the R.F.C. story have then usually gone on to assert that they have done nothing improper, either.

There is no need here to discuss the issue of illegality. If any be demonstrated, it is a matter for the courts and that's that. What is of much graver concern to the nation is the strange idea so many of our public officials seem to have of what is proper and what is improper.

An examiner for R.F.C. sees no harm in accepting free hospitality from a Florida hotel owner who has won an R.F.C. loan. Senator Murray, Montana Democrat, says it's quite "routine" for lawmakers to plug loans for applicants who happen to be constituents, even when a senator's son is the applicant's lawyer.

White House personnel feel utterly free about accepting favors of all kinds, as well as dispensing them. Maj.-Gen. Harry Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, doesn't have a single qualm whether he's taking in deep freezers or getting a special law pushed through Congress to allow entry from Australia of a woman acquaintance he wants as secretary.

In all these instances, the principals have one standard reply: "Is there anything wrong in that?"

That they even find it necessary to ask the question tells us how insensible many public men have become to any lofty code of propriety in official life. By any reasonable measure, no man who occupies a position of responsibility in government ought either to accept or grant special favors to anyone.

There was a time when such an elementary ethical standard was universally revered and widedly observed. In the Washington of 1951, it appears as outmoded as celluloid collars and knee-length bathing suits.

Offenses against the moral code today have tended to haul the national government down to the level of petty, tin-horn courthouse politics. They have robbed the White House and the presidency of dignity. They have made Washington life spineless, boneless—a shambles of competing influences and pressures and friendships in which moral values are buried underfoot.

Only one thing is still lacking. No one has yet put vending machines into the White House, the Capitol and assorted government halls to dispense favors easily, mechanically, and for a fixed price. "Is there anything wrong in that?"

VOTES IN A NAME

To the old question, "What's in a name?" it has frequently been answered that there may be votes in it. Experience has shown that an election candidate whose name is familiar to many persons is almost a sure winner over someone relatively unknown, and that he need not necessarily have a reputation for ability. Mere familiarity does it.

W. F. Fenton, clerk of an Ohio election board, made a further test. He made up a series of dummy ballots and submitted them to some 1,500 school students in a mock election. The names were all ficticious. He found that names with a familiar ring or pleasing connotation were consistent winners, and that the position on the ballot also influenced the choice. Names at the top of their list did better than those in second and third places.

This was a small test and perhaps it doesn't mean much. Added to the fact that dead men have sometimes been elected to office, it takes on more meaning. We could be a little more thoughtful in our exercise of the ballot. Office-holders, after all, should be chosen on something more signifiant than the sound of their names or their place on the ballot.

It is commonly said that an honest man is hard to find. Sometimes it may be even harder to get hold of a dishonest one.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE RETURN OF SUMNER WELLES

I received a circular letter announcing the return of Sumner Welles to active political life. It came as a surprise because it seemed as though he were in permanent retirement.

Mr. Welles's career was in the State Department in the hey-day of the wild men whom Senator Joe McCarthy has been denouncing as much for their habits as for their policies. He returns not to public office but as chairman of a new organization now being launched called "The First Freedom International," which is a curious title. What is the importance of the words, "the first," which are printed in smaller type? There have been many international organizations which have advocated freedom. Also, the title is reminiscent of the Second International of the Social Democrats, the Third International of Stalin and the Fourth International of Trotzky.

However, this is to be an anti-Communist international and is organized, it says, because others at work are failing. The circular says:

". . . Freedom is the real revolution—not Soviet tyranny—and the time is overdue for us to take the initiative on its behalf, on a scale hitherto unattempted."

And to achieve this "real revolution" a catch-all committee is formed which includes all sorts of diametrically opposed individuals, from Republicans to Social Democrats up and down the gamut of ideas. How any Republican can fight communism in the company of a Social Democrat, or how a religious leader can tie up with a Marxist who only objects to Stalin but not to Marxism, is difficult to analyze. Yet this organizing committee includes many distinguished and important names.

I picked at random a few and telephoned and I put the query this way: "I see you're serving on a committee under the chairmanship of Sumner Welles." Each seemed to show concern, as though I had presented him with a subpoena from the McCarran Committee. Each indicated that he had no knowledge that he had been asked to serve in this capacity.

I then gave the name of the organization and described its character. From some this got a response; from others it did not. In a word, there are always persons who lend their names to committee, petitions, open letters.

The card which accompanies this letter reads:

"I am happy to give my name without obligation as a member of the organizing committee of Freedom International."

Quite how one lends his name to a public cause "without obligation" is hard to understand. That is one of the most usual excuses given by those who joined Communist front organizations: They did not know what was involved; they signed without obligation.

Nonsense! When a man signs his name to anything, he takes on an obligation. He is responsible for the entire program of that organization. He is responsible for its conduct. He is responsible for its officials. Once he lends his name, he cannot dodge the fact that he did so. The record stands unless he publicly repudiates it. Mature men and women are expected to be responsible for their decisions.

The name-signers have strengthened the Communists over the past years and I suppose "The First Freedom International," headed by Sumner Welles, is copying their methods. But what does such signature-hunting really accomplish, unless each individual who signs up is devoted to the cause and is ready to stand or fall by it? But this organization which Sumner Wells heads wants signatures "without obligation."

No movement so founded can be of any use in the fight against Communists in this country or in the world. Nor do I believe that Sumner Welles can now inspire confidence in anyone. Look at his career! He managed the State Department when Alger Hiss and his gang made free there. He managed the State Department when the fateful China policy was formed—a policy which has cost us 60,000 casualties already.

What did Welles do to eliminate Communists from the State Department when he was its effective boss? What did he do to drive out the homosexuals? What will this organization have to say about his management of the State Department when the McCarran Committee's investigations into the I.P.R., about which I have been writing, begin to attract public attention?

I for one am not joining up with this business.

That Body of Yours

COMMON COLD AND ALLERGIC COLD

There is more time spent in trying to find the cause of the common cold than of any other ailment except, perhaps, cancer. That a virus—a very tiny organism—is the cause or one of the causes, is admitted.

All colds are not alike, and there is, therefore, controversy among physicians as to whether the common head cold is caused by allergy or by infection. We all know that some of these colds last only a few hours or a day or two at most and remain in the head, while others last for a week and there is coughing with accumulation of mucus in nose and throat.

Generally speaking, the cold that lasts only a short time is believed due to allergy or sensitiveness to certain substances—dust, feathers, furs, foods—and the cold lasting the week or more is a genuine infection.

In his book "Clinical Allergy," Dr. Louis Tuft states: "Colds are not acute infective colds unless they begin with an irritation in the nose, obstruction in the nose, general tiredness and weakness, dicharge from the nose, at first a thin mucus and later becoming like pus, and there is a rise in temperature. The thick mucus with pus and a rise in temperature are considered infection.

"Colds beginning with sneezing, followed by a water discharge from the nose, obstruction of the nose, perhaps a slight cough, with no fever, are more likely to be due to allergy—allergic rhinitis, due to allergy or sensitiveness to various substances, possibly associated with asthma."

The time of the attack of the allergy or asthma cold is important. If it occurs at night there may be something in the bedroom—dust, talcum powder, feathers from pillows—causing the symptoms, whereas if the attack occurs shortly after a meal, food allergy is likely the cause. Remember that the genuine common cold may begin with nose irritation just as with the allergic cold, but the genuine common cold penetrates you, the discharge from nose is thick, there is cough and profuse spitting, and there is fever or rise in temperature.

A final point is that in the allergic cold, the lining of the nose is pale while in the real or common cold, the lining of the nose is red.

D-Day for Uncle Joe

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

(Ed. Note: Drew Pearson is on a flying tour of Europe and the Middle East, surveying the world situation.)

Rome.—The inside fact about the new armament program just voted by the Italian Parliament is that it was put across only after some heroic backstage wire-pulling which few people, even those in official life, know about. The behind-the-scenes story illustrates what terrific uphill obstacles the United States faces in both rearming Europe and inspiring internal reforms over here.

The rearmament move really began when Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza, a great friend of the United States, became worried about the bad press Italy was getting in the United States and asked some of his American newspaper friends about it. Their reply was "Don't you realize that American boys are dying in Korea, that we all face possible war with Russia, yet Italy is doing nothing about it? The American people are getting tired of protecting the rest of the world."

Rearmament was not in Sforza's bailiwick. Furthermore, it was not in the bailiwick of certain Americans connected with the Marshall Plan who talked to Sforza about rearmament. Both were on delicate ground because he risked offending Italian generals; Marshall Plan officials because they risked offending U. S. Ambassador James Dunn, who follows the old-fashioned diplomatic theory that you must not jog the elbow of foreign governments regarding domestic policies and he was reluctant to crack down on the snail-like pace of Italian rearmament.

However, Sforza finally came up with a 26-page rearmament plan which was so confidential that it was given to ECA officials in the Rome railroad station by Sforza's deputy, so they wouldn't be seen together.

The ECA official sent back word that the proposed plan chiefly called for more expenditures by the already overburdened American taxpayer and that any real Italian rearmament plan must also provide for Italian sacrifices. More conferences followed, out of which was finally evolved the $400,000,000 arms bill okayed by the Italian Parliament last week.

Money Wasted By Army

The new Italian arms can bring about a complete end of Communism here, provided Italy is able to get all-too-scarce steel, aluminum and copper from the United States. For the new program should reactivate the northern automobile and tank factories, which have been virtually idle since the war, and wipe out Italian unemployment—the chief cause of communism.

However, the inside fact is a lot of money also will be wasted under Italian armament. The army, for instance, still maintains huge farms, theoretically for breeding cavalry horses. Though the cavalry has long since passed from use, the army clique refuses to relinquish its vast landed estates and Minister of Defense Randolfo Pacciardi, a devotee of David Dubinsky and the International Ladies Garment Workers, hasn't dared to buck the military hierarchy to bring about needed economies. In fact, Pacciardi has quietly appealed to American military advisers to pressure him for these economies.

This illustrates in Italian bureaucracy something which would make Senator Byrd faint. Commerce Minister Ivan Matteo Lombardo, commenting privately on this bureaucracy, once remarked "I have 13 stenographers. If I could fire all but three of them I could get some work done, but with 13 they just get in each other's way."

This bureaucracy has piled up so many government servants that 86 per cent of the social insurance paid in by the workers goes to pay for government administration. Repeatedly, since the war, the workers have had their premium payments for social security raised but not once have their insurance benefits been raised. The increase goes to pay bureaucrats' salaries'

Gervasi's Work Effective

A few weeks before General Eisenhower's scheduled visit to Italy, the walls of Rome were covered with posters reading "Ike, go home" plus other uncomplimentary remarks too filthy to be repeated here. Obviously this was the work of the Communists but since the walls of Rome are the television sets of the Italian people the posters had their effect and nothing was being done to counteract them.

Finally, while the American Embassy hesitated, Frank Gervasi, the live-wire chief of ECA information, got busy. He organized a committee of pro-American Italians which, working backstage with the ECA, concocted some of the most effective posters ever seen in Italy.

Jean Belliard, son-in-law of Edgar Ansel Mowrer and now French attache on Eisenhower's staff, conceived one brilliant idea—namely, quoting from the Moscow press at the time Eisenhower liberated Europe. One set of posters therefore featured the hammer and sickle with quotes from Izvestia and Pravda hailing Ike as a great liberator. At the bottom of the poster was the date: May, 1945. Other posters featured Ike in his Columbia University cap and gown, regretfully laying aside his books to don an outgrown uniform.

Overnight, squads organized by the ECA went out, tore down the Communist posters and put up the new set. Few people had any idea who inspired the overnight change. In fact, gracious Ambassador Dunn, riding through Rome's streets the next day, remarked, "you see what the Italian people do when you leave them alone?"

For some months Gervasi, a former Hearst newspaperman and roving correspondent for Collier's, has been putting new life into American propaganda in Italy. Thanks to him, millions of Italian people now know what the Marshall Plan has brought to them. Three of his publications are among the most ingenious in Europe. One is a comic magazine called "The Story of America" which is sold on newsstands weekly and is lapped up by the Italian public.

Another is "Il Campi," or "The Land," a monthly magazine for farmers which is increasing Italian agricultural output and at the same time is getting across the fact that the United States has extended great help to Italy. The third is called "Illustrated Worker," a poor man's Collier's, aimed at weaning labor away from the Communists. The last-named is so popular that, in six months, it has reached a newsstand circulation of 200,000 and soon will become a paying proposition.

Gervasi's ingenuity has done a great deal to give communism its heavy setbacks in Italy. Yet, when plans for future American publicity here were recently submitted to the American embassy, Ambassador Dunn carefully struck out Gervasi's proposed plans.

Unless U. S. Leadership in U.N. Is Shown, Military Force Will Be Put in Clamps

Washington, March 16—American leadership in the United Nations will have to be exerted promptly if the military expedition now in Korea is not to become enmeshed in a strait jacket of political inhibitions.

The spectacle of a military force hemmed in by political considerations in the midst of a battle is unprecedented in history — and what is worse, the considerations which are influencing the outcome are hidden from view.

The general has always chosen his words carefully in answering queries, and there is vast significance in the idea he has sought to convey by his latest message. For unquestionably, if there is no place to take up a position defensively on any line across the Korean peninsula, the only two things left to do are to continue indefinitely an indecisive war of maneuver or to push ahead to the Yalu river with enough troops and air bombardment of bases across the Manchurian border to protect our advancing armies.

What General MacArthur is saying, from his long experience as a strategist, is that the offensive he undertook last November was logical on the assumption that Red China would stay out but that, without the right to strike at the enemy's bases and supply lines across the Manchurian border, it would be a mistake now to try this. He implies, moreover, that the U.N. cannot indefinitely subject allied armies in Korea to a long war without defining more explicitly its objectives and without removing some of the barriers that stand between the U.N. forces and ultimate victory—namely, as he calls it, "The accomplishment of our mission in the unification of Korea."

The principal barrier is the supposed unwillingness of a majority of the U.N. to permit U.N. forces to achieve their real objective, which is to drive the Red Chinese out of Korea even if it means fighting the Communists north as well as south of the Yalu river. Just why Red Chinese troops cannot be killed north of the boundary but can be killed in large numbers south of that line is inexplicable.

It is important also to bear in mind that, if permission to bomb bases north of the Manchurian border is not to be granted by the U.N., then our forces must remain far enough south of the Yalu river to allow for a field of fire for our airplanes against enemy supply lines. This is but another way of saying that, without the right to bombard across the Manchurian boundary, the U.N. forces are committed indefinitely to what General MacArthur calls a war of maneuver.

What then will happen? Must the U.N. forces stay there for months and perhaps years? The answer will be forthcoming in a few weeks when the snow thaws and the mud bogs down the movements of troops and when the enemy will be able to move without so much fear of air attack, inasmuch as flying weather gets bad seasonally soon. A decision will come then and if the Red Chinese get a beating, peace may ensue.

The viewpoint held here in high quarters is that Red China already has been checked in southeast Asia, in Formosa, and in Tibet and cannot indefinitely keep up the fight in Korea and that, before the end of 1951, another negotiation will develop on Chinese initiative and that then a settlement which will vindicate the U.N. will be forthcoming. But, until that time, it is important that no obstacles be placed in the way of General MacArthur's forces to move up and down across the 38th Parallel and even beyond within safe range of his protecting air support.

This is, on the very face of things, a plot to get Senator McCarthy and vindicate the traitors whom he has thoroughly exposed. It is a plot to discredit Taft by false representations. Taft is a Republican. So is McCarthy. To insinuate, as fifth columnists in the Republican party and rascals in the Washington press corps have been doing, that there is anything wrong in political cooperation between these two uncompromising Republican patriots, is to arouse caution about their own man.

Their man is Eisenhower.

He was one of the authors of a failure of colossal import which in less than six years has brought us to war with Soviet Russia. In five years more, that failure might liquidate the republic. This propaganda follows the strange party line of a shapeless political ism having no integrity nor even a headquarters as yet.

With the purest motives, Eisenhower is invited to declare himself. Here is a president of one of our greatest universities, a man of comparatively petty education himself, a man who showed no urgent determination to clean out Communists in the teaching staff, a man who let the fatuous Roosevelt divert our army from the Balkans for the benefit of So-

THE WAY TO CALVARY

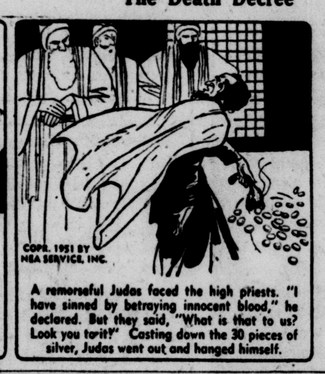

The defense of Jesus by Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus in the Hall of Judgment was almost successful. Testimony was not conclusive. The Nazarene was about to be acquitted of blasphemy when Caiaphas faced Him with the direct demand: "Tell us whether Thou art the Christ, the son of God!"

Jesus calmly affirmed His divinity with the reply, "Thou hast said it." This was the very utterance of "blasphemy" Caiaphas had sought to prove. The judges concurred, "He is guilty of death."

Veteran Writer Lauds Wicks As One of Legislative Greats

(High praise for Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, who also is Ulster County Republican Chairman, came today from a veteran writer of legislative affairs in Albany, Leo W. O'Brien, a staff writer of the Albany Times-Union. In the accompanying article Wicks is not built up as an orator, but as a man who keeps his word, a man who has the votes when the chips are down—an outstanding figure among great legislative leaders.)

By LEO W. O'BRIEN
Times-Union Staff Writer

The 1951 Legislature will adjourn today—hurrah! hurrah!

The ending of a legislative session brings with it the same feeling as the closing of school in June, departure on a summer vacation and the inspection of Christmas gifts. In short, it's a grand feeling.

Maybe it's the passing of time, but no longer does this writer have the old feeling of sadness when the lawmakers prepare to depart. That's particularly true this year because we know the boys will be back in special session next November to pass a congressional reapportionment bill.

This has been one of the shortest sessions on record, just a shade over 10 weeks long.

It ends as it began, with Governor Dewey firmly in control and with all of his program bills safely "in the barn." That is partly due to the governor's own influence and partly to the fact that he has a couple of top lieutenants in the Senate and Assembly in the persons of Senator Arthur H. Wicks, president pro tem of the Senate, and Assemblyman Oswald D. Heck, speaker of the Assembly.

Is 'Strong Man'

We have written before about the Heck leadership, so, at this time, we will talk about the new "strong man" of GOP lawmaking—Art Wicks.

This was his second full year as majority leader of the upper house and he has emerged from the 1951 session as the equal of any of the great leaders who have walked the Senate floor in the last quarter of a century.

MEMORY BRINGS back pictures of the dapper, persuasive Jimmy Walker; the dry, meticulous John Knight; the Lincolnesque, thundering George Fearon; the zealous, oratorical Ben Feinberg.

Giants in their day—all of them, but they must move over to make way for the trim, carefully groomed laundry operator from Kingston.

Jimmy Walker, George Fearon and Ben Feinberg were much better orators. Crowds never fill the Senate galleries to hear Art Wicks orate.

But, what is the real test of leadership in a legislative body? Production of the votes needed to pass a party bill or defeat an opposition bill. It is that simple in the telling but very difficult in the doing.

Doesn't Need Oratory

ART WICKS DOES it. He has no need for oratory when the chips are down because he has done his work in advance. He sits calmly, cooly at his desk, a half smile on his lips, knowing that behind him are THE VOTES.

I have known Art Wicks since he was a freshman lawmaker and the present situation is not a surprise. Through the years he has built the reputation that counts most in politics, a man who keeps his word.

That's why Republicans have followed him in support of bills when their loyalty to the leader was sure to cost them votes at home. That's the true test and that's why the name of Art Wicks takes its place today beside the immortals who have led the Senate throughout the years.

However, union local leaders in those communities indicated last night they'll institute a back-to-work movement today during negotiations for a settlement patterned after the agreement with New Bedford and Fall River mills.

In Utica, N. Y., James A. Dundon, managing director of TWUA's joint board, said he would offer mill owners, who employe 3,865, a 15-day extension today if management "attempts to reach an agreement with us."

A Knoxville union spokesman said negotiations probably will be resumed today on the basis of the New Bedford-Fall River formula.

THE WAY TO CALVARY

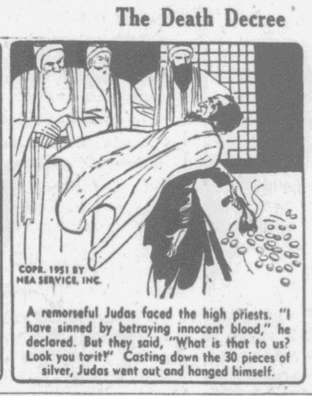

The defense of Jesus by Joseph of Arimathea and Nicodemus in the Hall of Judgment was almost successful. Testimony was not conclusive. The Nazarene was about to be acquitted of blasphemy when Caiaphas faced Him with the direct demand: "Tell us whether Thou art the Christ, the son of God!"

Jesus calmly affirmed His divinity with the reply, "Thou hast said it." This was the very utterance of "blasphemy" Caiaphas had sought to prove. The judges concurred, "He is guilty of death."

He said he was working for the country's welfare and he thought all other government employes are trying to do the same thing. The President said he thought character assassination is a terrible thing.

Mr. Truman, deeply tanned, was in rare good humor for the most part. He turned solemn when asked the outlook for peace in Korea.

He said he couldn't answer that question, but he would if he could.

Asked if United Nations forces will be allowed to pass beyond the 38th Parallel, Mr. Truman said that is a tactical decision to be made by the commander in the field, not by the commander-in-chief 7,000 miles away. He added that working to free the Koreans is our obligation.

Veteran Writer Lauds Wicks As One of Legislative Greats

(High praise for Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, who also is Ulster County Republican Chairman, came today from a veteran writer of legislative affairs in Albany, Leo W. O'Brien, a staff writer of the Albany Times-Union. In the accompanying article Wicks is not built up as an orator, but as a man who keeps his word, a man who has the votes when the chips are down—an outstanding figure among great legislative leaders.)

By LEO W. O'BRIEN
Times-Union Staff Writer

The 1951 Legislature will adjourn today—hurrah! hurrah!

The ending of a legislative session brings with it the same feeling as the closing of school in June, departure on a summer vacation and the inspection of Christmas gifts. In short, it's a grand feeling.

Maybe it's the passing of time, but no longer does this writer have the old feeling of sadness when the lawmakers prepare to depart. That's particularly true this year because we know the boys will be back in special session next November to pass a congressional reapportionment bill.

This has been one of the shortest sessions on record, just a shade over 10 weeks long.

It ends as it began, with Governor Dewey firmly in control and with all of his program bills safely "in the barn." That is partly due to the governor's own influence and partly to the fact that he has a couple of top lieutenants in the Senate and Assembly in the persons of Senator Arthur H. Wicks, president pro tem of the Senate, and Assemblyman Oswald D. Heck, speaker of the Assembly.

Is 'Strong Man'

We have written before about the Heck leadership, so, at this time, we will talk about the new "strong man" of GOP lawmaking—Art Wicks.

This was his second full year as majority leader of the upper house and he has emerged from the 1951 session as the equal of any of the great leaders who have walked the Senate floor in the last quarter of a century.

MEMORY BRINGS back pictures of the dapper, persuasive Jimmy Walker; the dry, meticulous John Knight; the Lincolnesque, thundering George Fearon; the zealous, oratorical Ben Feinberg.

Giants in their day—all of them, but they must move over to make way for the trim, carefully groomed laundry operator from Kingston.

Jimmy Walker, George Fearon and Ben Feinberg were much better orators. Crowds never fill the Senate galleries to hear Art Wicks orate.

But, what is the real test of leadership in a legislative body? Production of the votes needed to pass a party bill or defeat an opposition bill. It is that simple in the telling but very difficult in the doing.

Doesn't Need Oratory

ART WICKS DOES it. He has no need for oratory when the chips are down because he has done his work in advance. He sits calmly, cooly at his desk, a half smile on his lips, knowing that behind him are THE VOTES.

I have known Art Wicks since he was a freshman lawmaker and the present situation is not a surprise. Through the years he has built the reputation that counts most in politics, a man who keeps his word.

That's why Republicans have followed him in support of bills when their loyalty to the leader was sure to cost them votes at home. That's the true test and that's why the name of Art Wicks takes its place today beside the immortals who have led the Senate throughout the years.

However, union local leaders in those communities indicated last night they'll institute a back-to-work movement today during negotiations for a settlement patterned after the agreement with New Bedford and Fall River mills.

In Utica, N. Y., James A. Dundon, managing director of TWUA's joint board, said he would offer mill owners, who employ 3,865, a 15-day extension today if management "attempts to reach an agreement with us."

A Knoxville union spokesman said negotiations probably will be resumed today on the basis of the New Bedford-Fall River formula.

The New Bedford and Fall River mills generally set the pattern for the industry.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Fla., March 16—The changed international situation is already being felt in rural areas throughout the country. Farm land values which had been declining gradually for several months reversed their downward trend almost immediately after the Korean outbreak.

I have always maintained that land, and that includes good farm land, is an acceptable hedge against inflation or other types of crises. It may not be the very best hedge, but in the long run it should turn out to be a pretty good thing when cash is worth little and when other values dip accordingly. However, I do not generally recommend that my readers go out and buy a farm with the idea of growing produce or feeding cattle or hogs to sell commercially. Farming today is too specialized for any such hit or miss approach. What I advocate is that every city family who can afford it should own a sustenance farm, as insurance, capable of sheltering and supporting them in an emergency.

Readers who are now engaged in cattle raising, dairy farming and in producing large grain crops, often write asking me what I think of the prospects for the coming year in these fields. In my opinion, cattle prices generally will be well maintained over the next six months. Heavy employment at high wages should result in a continued high demand for beef. I do not anticipate that such demand will be adversely affected, to any substantial extent, by the imposition of still higher individual income taxes in 1951.

Lower Profits Possible

While cattle prices should remain at relatively high levels, increased producing costs generally may further cut profit margins in 1951, thus immeasurably increasing the risk in stock cattle farming.

Breeding herds that grow in numbers should maintain their value even in the face of such declines, provided you keep a sharp eye on local conditions, with a view to buying replacements and selling finished cattle at the most opportune time profitwise.

Those readers who now have farm land and wish to buy more or who, having had previous experience as owners of farm land, wish to make purchases in new locations are advised to act promptly. Good farm land will go higher. Admittedly, this is not the best time to buy it, but you should do much better now than you will be able to do by late summer. Thus, if you can find a good farm land that is not over-priced, my advice would be to go ahead, provided that you can pay about 50 per cent down and still have enough cash left for proper stocking and operating, as well as for emergencies. Productive land is a sound investment and good land should continue to have real value, no matter what price changes may come over the longer term.

Dairy Farming Discussed

Those readers now considering going into dairying should think twice and then stop and think again, even if they have had previous experience in this very uncertain field. Profit margins in dairying vary considerably in different sections of the country and many an otherwise able man has lost his shirt by plunging enthusiastically into a dairy program without giving sufficient thought to the possible consequences. The principal problem in dairying, and it is essentially the same in New England, in the Midwest or in the Rockies, is the cost of feeds. These feed costs usually represent more than half of the total cost of milk production and largely determine profits.

If you think you can control feed costs, through a well-balanced feed program, which includes careful management of your feed inventory you can probably make money in dairying. But if you have grave doubts as to your ability to keep feed costs within bounds, steer clear of such an operation. Yet, I think farming generally will be profitable in 1951. Farm income will be up, at least through the first half and, perhaps, beyond. For the year, it should average some 15 per cent above 1950.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Fla., March 16—The changed international situation is already being felt in rural areas throughout the country. Farm land values which had been declining gradually for several months reversed their downward trend almost immediately after the Korean outbreak.

I have always maintained that land, and that includes good farm land, is an acceptable hedge against inflation or other types of crises. It may not be the very best hedge, but in the long run it should turn out to be a pretty good thing when cash is worth little and when other values dip accordingly. However, I do not generally recommend that my readers go out and buy a farm with the idea of growing produce or feeding cattle or hogs to sell commercially. Farming today is too specialized for any such hit or miss approach. What I advocate is that every city family who can afford it should own a sustenance farm, as insurance, capable of sheltering and supporting them in an emergency.

Readers who are now engaged in cattle raising, dairy farming and in producing large grain crops, often write asking me what I think of the prospects for the coming year in these fields. In my opinion, cattle prices generally will be well maintained over the next six months. Heavy employment at high wages should result in a continued high demand for beef. I do not anticipate that such demand will be adversely affected, to any substantial extent, by the imposition of still higher individual income taxes in 1951.

Lower Profits Possible

While cattle prices should remain at relatively high levels, increased producing costs generally may further cut profit margins in 1951, thus immeasurably increasing the risk in stock cattle farming.

Breeding herds that grow in numbers should maintain their value even in the face of such declines, provided you keep a sharp eye on local conditions, with a view to buying replacements and selling finished cattle at the most opportune time profitwise.

Those readers who now have farm land and wish to buy more or who, having had previous experience as owners of farm land, wish to make purchases in new locations are advised to act promptly. Good farm land will go higher. Admittedly, this is not the best time to buy it, but you should do much better now than you will be able to do by late summer. Thus, if you can find a good farm land that is not over-priced, my advice would be to go ahead, provided that you can pay about 50 per cent down and still have enough cash left for proper stocking and operating, as well as for emergencies. Productive land is a sound investment and good land should continue to have real value, no matter what price changes may come over the longer term.

Dairy Farming Discussed

Those readers now considering going into dairying should think twice and then stop and think again, even if they have had previous experience in this very uncertain field. Profit margins in dairying vary considerably in different sections of the country and many an otherwise able man has lost his shirt by plunging enthusiastically into a dairy program without giving sufficient thought to the possible consequences. The principal problem in dairying, and it is essentially the same in New England, in the Midwest or in the Rockies, is the cost of feeds. These feed costs usually represent more than half of the total cost of milk production and largely determine profits.

If you think you can control feed costs, through a well-balanced feed program, which includes careful management of your feed inventory you can probably make money in dairying. But if you have grave doubts as to your ability to keep feed costs within bounds, steer clear of such an operation. Yet, I think farming generally will be profitable in 1951. Farm income will be up, at least through the first half and, perhaps, beyond. For the year, it should average some 15 per cent above 1950.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Fla., March 16—The changed international situation is already being felt in rural areas throughout the country. Farm land values which had been declining gradually for several months reversed their downward trend almost immediately after the Korean outbreak.

I have always maintained that land, and that includes good farm land, is an acceptable hedge against inflation or other types of crises. It may not be the very best hedge, but in the long run it should turn out to be a pretty good thing when cash is worth little and when other values dip accordingly. However, I do not generally recommend that my readers go out and buy a farm with the idea of growing produce or feeding cattle or hogs to sell commercially. Farming today is too specialized for any such hit or miss approach. What I advocate is that every city family who can afford it should own a sustenance farm, as insurance, capable of sheltering and supporting them in an emergency.

Readers who are now engaged in cattle raising, dairy farming and in producing large grain crops, often write asking me what I think of the prospects for the coming year in these fields. In my opinion, cattle prices generally will be well maintained over the next six months. Heavy employment at high wages should result in a continued high demand for beef. I do not anticipate that such demand will be adversely affected, to any substantial extent, by the imposition of still higher individual income taxes in 1951.

Lower Profits Possible

While cattle prices should remain at relatively high levels, increased producing costs generally may further cut profit margins in 1951, thus immeasurably increasing the risk in stock cattle farming.

Breeding herds that grow in numbers should maintain their value even in the face of such declines, provided you keep a sharp eye on local conditions, with a view to buying replacements and selling finished cattle at the most opportune time profitwise.

Those readers who now have farm land and wish to buy more or who, having had previous experience as owners of farm land, wish to make purchases in new locations are advised to act promptly. Good farm land will go higher. Admittedly, this is not the best time to buy it, but you should do much better now than you will be able to do by late summer. Thus, if you can find a good farm land that is not over-priced, my advice would be to go ahead, provided that you can pay about 50 per cent down and still have enough cash left for proper stocking and operating, as well as for emergencies. Productive land is a sound investment and good land should continue to have real value, no matter what price changes may come over the longer term.

Dairy Farming Discussed

Those readers now considering going into dairying should think twice and then stop and think again, even if they have had previous experience in this very uncertain field. Profit margins in dairying vary considerably in different sections of the country and many an otherwise able man has lost his shirt by plunging enthusiastically into a dairy program without giving sufficient thought to the possible consequences. The principal problem in dairying, and it is essentially the same in New England, in the Midwest or in the Rockies, is the cost of feeds. These feed costs usually represent more than half of the total cost of milk production and largely determine profits.

If you think you can control feed costs, through a well-balanced feed program, which includes careful management of your feed inventory you can probably make money in dairying.

Training Camp News in Brief

By The Associated Press

Miami, Fla., March 16 (AP)—The New York Giants have lost temporarily the services of two veteran performers—second baseman Eddie Stanky and utility outfielder Roy (Stormy) Weatherly.

Both were injured yesterday. Weatherly suffered a fractured jaw and the loss of three teeth when struck by a line drive in batting practice. Stanky was hit on the side of the left wrist attempting to catch a line drive. Weatherly will be out for six weeks and Stanky for at least four days.

Yanks in Hollywood

Hollywood, Calif., March 16 (AP) The New York Yankees today opened their exhibition tour of California—the first in the club's history—and it figures to be a profitable venture for the world champions. The Yanks play Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League as a starter.

Manager Casey Stengel, a native of Glendale, Calif., said he will use his regulars in the tour, that also include stops at Oakland, San Francisco and Glendale. Every game is a sellout and 150,000 are expected to watch the champs.

Edwards Clicks

Miami, Fla., March 16 (AP) — Hank Edwards, former Cleveland and Chicago Cubs outfielder, is making a hit with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Edwards, property of the Dodgers' Montreal farm, has banged out four hits in the last two days. The Dodgers plan to keep Edwards on as a pinch-hitter and utility outfielder.

Braves vs. Phils

Brandeton, Fla., March 16 (AP) —After bowing to the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday the Boston Braves will oppose the National League champions from Philadelphia today at Clearwater.

Bob Hall, Murray Wall and Ernie Johnson are expected to pitch for the Tribe in the order named.

Manager Billy Southworth and other tribal officials breathed easier today after left hander Warren Spahn pitched 10 minutes of batting practice and reported soreness had left his arm. The Braves would be weakened considerably with Spahnnie out of action.

Bosox Mash Problems

Sarasota, Fla., March 15 (AP)—Who will be the Red Sox catcher? That question is plaguing followers of the Boston American Leaguers. There are six in camp. Alphabetically they are Matt Batts, Al Evans, Mike Guerra, Buddy Rosar, Bob Scherbarth and Sammy White.

White needs more seasoning. Scherbarth has virtually no major league competition behind him. Batts is the youngest of the other four but Guerra, Rosar and Evans are smoother and more experienced.

Today, the Sox began a five day road trip by playing Detroit at Lakeland. Rookies Bill Evans, Ben Flowers and Paul Hinrichs probably will pitch. Lou Boudreau is expected to play second base while Bob Doerr rests a sore leg.

Sawyer Pleased

Clearwater, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer would just as soon forget the defeat handed his Philadelphia Phillies by the New York Giants yesterday.

But when the Phillies' B team triumphed over Cincinnati's "B" squad is mentioned he's all smiles.

Big John Walz looked like he'll make the grade as he pitched shutout ball the last four innings in the "B" team's 6-2 victory. And veteran Jimmy Bloodworth had a double, triple and a home run in four times at bat.

Jim Konstanty, however, was a disappointment against the Giants as rookie Art Wilson tagged him for a game winning double in the ninth.

Women to Dedicate Golf Hall of Fame

Augusta, Ga., March 16 (AP)—The Hall of Fame for women's golf becomes an officially established shrine tonight at the Augusta Country Club. Patty Berg, president of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, sponsoring body of the Hall of Fame for professional and amateur women golfers, will make the formal dedication at a banquet given by the club and the titleholders tournament. The hall, which eventually will include a musuem of clubs and other equipment historic in women's golf, will be established in the Wallace Room of the Augusta Club.

STATIONED AT GREAT LAKES

Clark Mains, Port Ewen's gift to organized baseball, will have plenty of opportunity to further his pitching career in spite of the fact that he recently surrendered his civilian clothes to the U. S. Navy. Now stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, the former K.H.S. great, who has had two years of minor league experience in the New York Giant farm system (Class D, B and C) will try for the varsity baseball team at one of the most sports-minded service centers in the country. Sollazzo Faces Deportation

New York, March 16 (AP)—The Justice Department has moved to deport Salvatore Sollazzo, , the ex-convict accused as the master briber in the college basketball scandal here.

But the Manhattan district attorney hopes to convict him of bribery and make him serve a sentence before any deportation.

A warrant of arrest was served on Sollazzo in his jail cell yesterday in proceedings for deportation to his native Italy.

Grounds for a deportation order, the Justice Department said, include past convictions for crimes involving moral turpitude, entrance into this country without a visa, and misrepresentation of himself as an American citizen to immigration authorities.

After the warrant was served on the 47-year-old Sollazzo, a spokesman for District Attorney Frank S. Hogan expressed hope that the deportation proceedings would be held in abeyance until after his trial in a state court and possible sentence.

Sollazzo, a jewel merchant and gambler, is held without bail on a bribery indictment. He is charged with bribing 11 players or former players of three New York colleges to fix basketball games in Madison Square Garden so he could clean up on bets.

Sollazzo also has been indicted on income tax evasion charges, served with a large tax lien and investigated about gold transactions.

The Justice Department said Sollazzo first came to this country legally as an infant in 1906, but went to Cuba three years ago and returned without a visa on the representation that he had American citizenship.

Training Camp News in Brief

By The Associated Press

Miami, Fla., March 16 (AP)—The New York Giants have lost temporarily the services of two veteran performers—second baseman Eddie Stanky and utility outfielder Roy (Stormy) Weatherly.

Both were injured yesterday. Weatherly suffered a fractured jaw and the loss of three teeth when struck by a line drive in batting practice. Stanky was hit on the side of the left wrist attempting to catch a line drive. Weatherly will be out for six weeks and Stanky for at least four days.

Yanks in Hollywood

Hollywood, Calif., March 16 (AP) The New York Yankees today opened their exhibition tour of California—the first in the club's history—and it figures to be a profitable venture for the world champions. The Yanks play Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League as a starter.

Manager Casey Stengel, a native of Glendale, Calif., said he will use his regulars in the tour, that also include stops at Oakland, San Francisco and Glendale. Every game is a sellout and 150,000 are expected to watch the champs.

Edwards Clicks

Miami, Fla., March 16 (AP) — Hank Edwards, former Cleveland and Chicago Cubs outfielder, is making a hit with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Edwards, property of the Dodgers' Montreal farm, has banged out four hits in the last two days. The Dodgers plan to keep Edwards on as a pinch-hitter and utility outfielder.

Braves vs. Phils

Brandeton, Fla., March 16 (AP) —After bowing to the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday the Boston Braves will oppose the National League champions from Philadelphia today at Clearwater.

Bob Hall, Murray Wall and Ernie Johnson are expected to pitch for the Tribe in the order named.

Manager Billy Southworth and other tribal officials breathed easier today after left hander Warren Spahn pitched 10 minutes of batting practice and reported soreness had left his arm. The Braves would be weakened considerably with Spahnnie out of action.

Bosox Mash Problems

Sarasota, Fla., March 15 (AP)—Who will be the Red Sox catcher? That question is plaguing followers of the Boston American Leaguers. There are six in camp. Alphabetically they are Matt Batts, Al Evans, Mike Guerra, Buddy Rosar, Bob Scherbarth and Sammy White.

White needs more seasoning. Scherbarth has virtually no major league competition behind him. Batts is the youngest of the other four but Guerra, Rosar and Evans are smoother and more experienced.

Today, the Sox began a five day road trip by playing Detroit at Lakeland. Rookies Bill Evans, Ben Flowers and Paul Hinrichs probably will pitch. Lou Boudreau is expected to play second base while Bob Doerr rests a sore leg.

Sawyer Pleased

Clearwater, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer would just as soon forget the defeat handed his Philadelphia Phillies by the New York Giants yesterday.

But when the Phillies' B team triumphed over Cincinnati's "B" squad is mentioned he's all smiles.

Big John Walz looked like he'll make the grade as he pitched shutout ball the last four innings in the "B" team's 6-2 victory. And veteran Jimmy Bloodworth had a double, triple and a home run in four times at bat.

Jim Konstanty, however, was a disappointment against the Giants as rookie Art Wilson tagged him for a game winning double in the ninth.

Women to Dedicate Golf Hall of Fame

Augusta, Ga., March 16 (AP)—The Hall of Fame for women's golf becomes an officially established shrine tonight at the Augusta Country Club. Patty Berg, president of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, sponsoring body of the Hall of Fame for professional and amateur women golfers, will make the formal dedication at a banquet given by the club and the titleholders tournament. The hall, which eventually will include a musuem of clubs and other equipment historic in women's golf, will be established in the Wallace Room of the Augusta Club.

Sollazzo Faces Deportation

New York, March 16 (AP) The Justice Department has moved to deport Salvatore Sollazzo, the ex-convict accused as the master briber in the college basketball scandal here.

But the Manhattan district attorney hopes to convict him of bribery and make him serve a sentence before any deportation.

A warrant of arrest was served on Sollazzo in his jail cell yesterday in proceedings for deportation to his native Italy.

Grounds for a deportation order, the Justice Department said, include past convictions for crimes involving moral turpitude, entrance into this country without a visa, and misrepresentation of himself as an American citizen to immigration authorities.

After the warrant was served on the 47-year-old Sollazzo, a spokesman for District Attorney Frank S. Hogan expressed hope that the deportation proceedings would be held in abeyance until after his trial in a state court and possible sentence.

Sollazzo, a jewel merchant and gambler, is held without bail on a bribery indictment. He is charged with bribing 11 players or former players of three New York colleges to fix basketball games in Madison Square Garden so he could clean up on bets.

Sollazzo also has been indicted on income tax evasion charges, served with a large tax lien and investigated about gold transactions.

The Justice Department said Sollazzo first came to this country legally as an infant in 1906, but went to Cuba three years ago and returned without a visa, on the representation that he had American citizenship.

JUST MISSES NEW ARMY RECORD

Big Ed Weaver, who in his sophomore year was Army's top basketball scorer, came within a point of tying Dale Hall's all-time season record for a West Point player with 272 points. This represents a 17-game average of 16 points per set. Big Ed, one of Kingston's all-time greats, is a certainty to shatter the three-year record for Army. Other Army varsity scoring totals were Gil Reich 169; Capt. Ed Tixier 145; Charlie Aahkus 137; Frank Fischl 97; Vince Bailey 41. Army had a seasonal record of nine wins and eight defeats. One of the finest freshmen squads in several years assures a standout Cadet quintet for the 1951-52 campaign, according to Joe Cahill of the athletic publicity department at the Point. (U. S. Army Photo)

Bowling

Team No. 6 and Team No. 2 are tied for the Freeman League leadership today, thanks to a jarring three-game upset the No. 7 keglers dealt the No. 2s in last night's weekly session at the Bowlatorium. The leading squads have identical records of 44 wins and 31 defeats.

Nick Huber dominated the individual scoring with a gaudy 579 on solos of 223, 182 and 174. Favorites Topple In NCI Tourney

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—Two more top-seeded teams were out of the running today as the National Catholic Invitation Basketball Tournament moved into the semi-finals.

Mount St. Mary's a high-scoring five from Emmitsburg, Md., slapped St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., 83-74, in the quarter-finals last night and St. Francis of Brooklyn nipped Loras of Dubuque, Iowa, 65-63.

Mount St. Mary's meets Seattle, the last of the four seeded teams in the tournament, in the first game tonight (7:45 p. m. E.S.T.).

In the second game, St. Francis tackles Le Moyne of Syracuse, the team that knocked off Siena's defending champions.

In its two tournament games Mount St. Mary's has run up 174 points—largely through the efforts of Les Cosgrove, its sensational freshman from Weehawken, N. J.

The final and consolation games will be played tomorrow.

Heilmann Stricken With Heart Attack

Lakeland, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Former baseball star Harry Heilmann was in serious condition in a hospital today.

Heilmann, for 15 years a great outfielder with the Detroit Tigers and for eight years since a radio broadcaster of Tiger games collapsed yesterday.

He was taken to Morrell Memorial Hospital and placed in an oxygen tent. Dr. W. J. Annis said a heart condition was aggravated by a cold.

Ski Conditions

Albany, N. Y., March 16—Ski conditions in New York state reported yesterday to the State Department of Commerce:

Belleayre Mountain — 5 settled powder on 1-8 granular, good.

Highmount—3 heavy snow on 1-4 old base, fair to good.

Bail Is Reduced

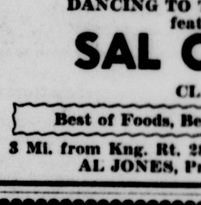

New York, March 16 (AP)—A huge reduction in bail was taken today as an indication that Harry Gross, former big-time bookie, is cooperating with a Brooklyn crime probe. Gross, who headed a twenty-million-dollars-a-year bookmaking syndicate, had been held in lieu of $250,000 bail as material witness in a grand jury investigation of gambling and police graft. Yesterday Kings County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz reduced the bail to $25,000, saying that his action was "with the express understanding that the district attorney assumes responsibility for the safety of this man."

The 150-ton blue whale is larger than the largest of the dinosaurs of former geological ages.

Today Dr. Ellen is the talk of both the medical and show world because of his amazing demonstration in a recent appearance in Pittsburgh. He CURED a paralyzed girl who would never walk again. Dr. Ellen gave Eunice Kinzer of Glenshaw, Pennsylvania, her graduation present, a promise that she would dance at her high school prom. This story alone high-lights Dr. Ellen's work, along with the entertainment that he affords his audience at his many appearances.
Dr. Arthur Ellen who will bring his novel and amazing demonstration of hypnosis-in-action to "The Tropical" is proving top business at every performance.

Favorites Topple In NCI Tourney

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—Two more top-seeded teams were out of the running today as the National Catholic Invitation Basketball Tournament moved into the semi-finals.

Mount St. Mary's a high-scoring five from Emmitsburg, Md., slapped St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., 83-74, in the quarter-finals last night and St. Francis of Brooklyn nipped Loras of Dubuque, Iowa, 65-63.

Mount St. Mary's meets Seattle, the last of the four seeded teams in the tournament, in the first game tonight (7:45 p. m. E.S.T.).

In the second game, St. Francis tackles Le Moyne of Syracuse, the team that knocked off Siena's defending champions.

In its two tournament games Mount St. Mary's has run up 174 points—largely through the efforts of Les Cosgrove, its sensational freshman from Weehawken, N. J.

The final and consolation games will be played tomorrow.

Heilmann Stricken With Heart Attack

Lakeland, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Former baseball star Harry Heilmann was in serious condition in a hospital today.

Heilmann, for 15 years a great outfielder with the Detroit Tigers and for eight years since a radio broadcaster of Tiger games collapsed yesterday.

He was taken to Morrell Memorial Hospital and placed in an oxygen tent. Dr. W. J. Annis said a heart condition was aggravated by a cold.

Ski Conditions

Albany, N. Y., March 16—Ski conditions in New York state reported yesterday to the State Department of Commerce:

Belleayre Mountain—5 settled powder on 1-8 granular, good.

Highmount—3 heavy snow on 1-4 old base, fair to good.

Bail Is Reduced

New York, March 16 (AP)—A huge reduction in bail was taken today as an indication that Harry Gross, former big-time bookie, is cooperating with a Brooklyn crime probe. Gross, who headed a twenty-million-dollars-a-year bookmaking syndicate, had been held in lieu of $250,000 bail as material witness in a grand jury investigation of gambling and police graft. Yesterday Kings County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz reduced the bail to $25,000, saying that his action was "with the express understanding that the district attorney assumes responsibility for the safety of this man."

The 150-ton blue whale is larger than the largest of the dinosaurs of former geological ages.

Today Dr. Ellen is the talk of both the medical and show world because of his amazing demonstration in a recent appearance in Pittsburgh. He CURED a paralyzed girl who would never walk again. Dr. Ellen gave Eunice Kinzer of Glenshaw, Pennsylvania, her graduation present, a promise that she would dance at her high school prom. This story alone high-lights Dr. Ellen's work, along with the entertainment that he affords his audience at his many appearances.
Dr. Arthur Ellen who will bring his novel and amazing demonstration of hypnosis-in-action to "The Tropical" is proving top business at every performance.

Favorites Topple In NCI Tourney

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—Two more top-seeded teams were out of the running today as the National Catholic Invitation Basketball Tournament moved into the semi-finals.

Mount St. Mary's a high-scoring five from Emmitsburg, Md., slapped St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., 83-74, in the quarter-finals last night and St. Francis of Brooklyn nipped Loras of Dubuque, Iowa, 65-63.

Mount St. Mary's meets Seattle, the last of the four seeded teams in the tournament, in the first game tonight (7:45 p. m. E.S.T.).

In the second game, St. Francis tackles Le Moyne of Syracuse, the team that knocked off Siena's defending champions.

In its two tournament games Mount St. Mary's has run up 174 points—largely through the efforts of Les Cosgrove, its sensational freshman from Weehawken, N. J.

The final and consolation games will be played tomorrow.

Heilmann Stricken With Heart Attack

Lakeland, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Former baseball star Harry Heilmann was in serious condition in a hospital today.

Heilmann, for 15 years a great outfielder with the Detroit Tigers and for eight years since a radio broadcaster of Tiger games collapsed yesterday.

He was taken to Morrell Memorial Hospital and placed in an oxygen tent. Dr. W. J. Annis said a heart condition was aggravated by a cold.

Ski Conditions

Albany, N. Y., March 16—Ski conditions in New York state reported yesterday to the State Department of Commerce:

Belleayre Mountain—5 settled powder on 1-8 granular, good.

Highmount—3 heavy snow on 1-4 old base, fair to good.

Bail Is Reduced

New York, March 16 (AP)—A huge reduction in bail was taken today as an indication that Harry Gross, former big-time bookie, is cooperating with a Brooklyn crime probe. Gross, who headed a twenty-million-dollars-a-year bookmaking syndicate, had been held in lieu of $250,000 bail as material witness in a grand jury investigation of gambling and police graft. Yesterday Kings County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz reduced the bail to $25,000, saying that his action was "with the express understanding that the district attorney assumes responsibility for the safety of this man."

The 150-ton blue whale is larger than the largest of the dinosaurs of former geological ages.

Today Dr. Ellen is the talk of both the medical and show world because of his amazing demonstration in a recent appearance in Pittsburgh. He CURED a paralyzed girl who would never walk again. Dr. Ellen gave Eunice Kinzer of Glenshaw, Pennsylvania, her graduation present, a promise that she would dance at her high school prom. This story alone high-lights Dr. Ellen's work, along with the entertainment that he affords his audience at his many appearances.
Dr. Arthur Ellen who will bring his novel and amazing demonstration of hypnosis-in-action to "The Tropical" is proving top business at every performance.

Episcopal Services Planned for Easter

Woodstock, March 16—At a preliminary meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius V. V. Blood Donor Earlier, Then Gets Transfusion

Woodstock, March 16—The importance of the Woodstock blood bank was vividly illustrated on Wednesday night when Earl France required a blood transfusion at the Kingston Hospital. France, who had been taken to the hospital earlier in the day, received a compound fracture of his ankle when he fell from a scaffolding while working at the Whitehead place in Byrdcliffe.

Last February France had been one of the group of residents who had contributed blood to the bank when the unit was at the Woodstock Health Center.

It was reported that France will be hospitalized for about nine weeks.

Seeks Funds to Pay War Memorial Debt

Woodstock, March 16 — Mrs. Fennell Franckling, president of the Woodstock Community War Memorial Association, has made an appeal for funds to pay off the $100 which is still owing for the memorial on the village green.

She reminds Woodstockers that the association gave the initial $1,000 for the recreation field as a part of the memorial. The group was responsible for the bronze memorial and the stone base and benches which now stand in the center of town. In addition they cleaned up and landscaped the green and provided the walk leading to the memorial.

With the approach of Memorial Day the village green becomes a focal point of the outdoor ceremonies, while the recreation field has proved its inestimable value to the youth of the town throughout the summer months.

Contributions may be sent to Mrs. Margaret R. Kenyon, treasurer, Community War Memorial Association, Woodstock.

As a rule, a suit is bidable if it contains at least four cards. There are situations, however, in which a player should not hesitate to bid a three-card suit. Today's hand illustrates the point.

North has no trouble in choosing his opening bid. But after he bid one diamond and South responded with one spade, what should North do next? Many possibilities suggest themselves, but all except one are very bad. Let us consider the bad bids first and see why they are bad.

North cannot raise spades. A raise to only two spades is an underbid, while a raise to three spades slightly overstates the strength and seriously overstates the length of North's spades. It is most undesirable to give your partner a double raise with only three trumps.

North cannot rebid in no-trump. A bid of one no-trump would be an underbid, while a jump to two no-trump is unsound because of the weak doubleton in hearts. Any jump bid in no-trump should guarantee a stopped in each of the unbid suits.

North cannot rebid the diamonds. A rebid of only two diamonds is an underbid, while a jump of three diamonds overstates the strength of that suit and is not sufficiently informative.

For example, if North happens to bid three diamonds, what should South then do. Should he bid three no-trump with no stopper in clubs? If not, what else can he bid?

The only remaining possibility is a rebid of two clubs. This misstates the length of North's clubs, but has no other defect. If South can rebid the spades, North will be able to raise that suit enthusiastically.

If South can stop the hearts, he will know that the clubs are taken care of and can therefore bid no-trumps confidently. Even if South has to pass two clubs, without even being able to give a preference bid of two diamonds, there will be no game in the hand, and the chances are that two clubs is not a particularly bad contract.

When this hand was actually played, declarer let the opponents win the first club trick and then had no further trouble.

Dummy won the second round of clubs and the diamonds were begun at once. East took the ace of diamonds and could not continue clubs; so that the rest of the play was very easy. Declarer made two clubs, four diamonds, two hearts and two spades for a total of ten tricks.

The parish has been designated as St. Gregory's Mission in that the initial meeting was held on St. Gregory's Day. Services will be held from time to time and plans will be made for a possible church. Anyone interested in becoming a member of the parish is invited to attend these services.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Margaret R. Kenyon, Mrs. Milton Wagenfohr, Richard Eshmann and George Hard. Richard Eshmann was appointed treasurer of the group.

As a rule, a suit is bidable if it contains at least four cards. There are situations, however, in which a player should not hesitate to bid a three-card suit. Today's hand illustrates the point.

North has no trouble in choosing his opening bid. But after he bid one diamond and South responded with one spade, what should North do next? Many possibilities suggest themselves, but all except one are very bad. Let us consider the bad bids first and see why they are bad.

North cannot raise spades. A raise to only two spades is an underbid, while a raise to three spades slightly overstates the strength and seriously overstates the length of North's spades. It is most undesirable to give your partner a double raise with only three trumps.

North cannot rebid in no-trump. A bid of one no-trump would be an underbid, while a jump to two no-trump is unsound because of the weak doubleton in hearts. Any jump bid in no-trump should guarantee a stopped in each of the unbid suits.

North cannot rebid the diamonds. A rebid of only two diamonds is an underbid, while a jump of three diamonds overstates the strength of that suit and is not sufficiently informative.

For example, if North happens to bid three diamonds, what should South then do. Should he bid three no-trump with no stopper in clubs? If not, what else can he bid?

The only remaining possibility is a rebid of two clubs. This misstates the length of North's clubs, but has no other defect. If South can rebid the spades, North will be able to raise that suit enthusiastically.

If South can stop the hearts, he will know that the clubs are taken care of and can therefore bid notrumps confidently. Even if South has to pass two clubs, without even being able to give a preference bid of two diamonds, there will be no game in the hand, and the chances are that two clubs is not a particularly bad contract.

When this hand was actually played, declarer let the opponents win the first club trick and then had no further trouble.

Dummy won the second round of clubs and the diamonds were begun at once. East took the ace of diamonds and could not continue clubs; so that the rest of the play was very easy. Declarer made two clubs, four diamonds, two hearts and two spades for a total of ten tricks.

Episcopal Services Planned for Easter

Woodstock, March 16—At a preliminary meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius V. V. Sewell last Monday night plans were made for Episcopal services to be held on Easter Sunday at 8 p. m. and Easter Monday at 9 a. m. at the Sewell residence. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Herald C. Swezy, of the Church of the Ascension of West Park.

The services planned are an outgrowth of a visit by Father Swezy to Mrs. Sherwood Hard. At that time he learned that a number of his former parishoners were in this vicinity and were interested in forming a parish here.

The parish has been designated as St. Gregory's Mission in that the initial meeting was held on St. Gregory's Day. Services will be held from time to time and plans will be made for a possible church. Anyone interested in becoming a member of the parish is invited to attend these services.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. Margaret R. Kenyon, Mrs. Milton Wagenfohr, Richard Eshmann and George Hard. Richard Eshmann was appointed treasurer of the group.

Blood Donor Earlier, Then Gets Transfusion

Woodstock, March 16—The importance of the Woodstock blood bank was vividly illustrated on Wednesday night when Earl France required a blood transfusion at the Kingston Hospital. France, who had been taken to the hospital earlier in the day, received a compound fracture of his ankle when he fell from a scaffolding while working at the Whitehead place in Byrdcliffe.

Last February France had been one of the group of residents who had contributed blood to the bank when the unit was at the Woodstock Health Center.

It was reported that France will be hospitalized for about nine weeks.

Seeks Funds to Pay War Memorial Debt

Woodstock, March 16 — Mrs. Fennell Franckling, president of the Woodstock Community War Memorial Association, has made an appeal for funds to pay off the $100 which is still owing for the memorial on the village green.

She reminds Woodstockers that the association gave the initial $1,000 for the recreation field as a part of the memorial. The group was responsible for the bronze memorial and the stone base and benches which now stand in the center of town. In addition they cleaned up and landscaped the green and provided the walk leading to the memorial.

With the approach of Memorial Day the village green becomes a focal point of the outdoor ceremonies, while the recreation field has proved its inestimable value to the youth of the town throughout the summer months.

Contributions may be sent to Mrs. Margaret R. Kenyon, treasurer, Community War Memorial Association, Woodstock.

Written for NEA Service

As a rule, a suit is bidable if it contains at least four cards. There are situations, however, in which a player should not hesitate to bid a three-card suit. Today's hand illustrates the point.

North has no trouble in choosing his opening bid. But after he bid one diamond and South responded with one spade, what should North do next? Many possibilities suggest themselves, but all except one are very bad. Let us consider the bad bids first and see why they are bad.

North cannot raise spades. A raise to only two spades is an underbid, while a raise to three spades slightly overstates the strength and seriously overstates the length of North's spades. It is most undesirable to give your partner a double raise with only three trumps.

North cannot rebid in no-trump. A bid of one no-trump would be an underbid, while a jump to two no-trump is unsound because of the weak doubleton in hearts. Any jump bid in no-trump should guarantee a stopped in each of the unbid suits.

North cannot rebid the diamonds. A rebid of only two diamonds is an underbid, while a jump of three diamonds overstates the strength of that suit and is not sufficiently informative.

For example, if North happens to bid three diamonds, what should South then do. Should he bid three no-trump with no stopper in clubs? If not, what else can he bid?

The only remaining possibility is a rebid of two clubs. This misstates the length of North's clubs, but has no other defect. If South can rebid the spades, North will be able to raise that suit enthusiastically.

If South can stop the hearts, he will know that the clubs are taken care of and can therefore bid no-trumps confidently. Even if South has to pass two clubs, without even being able to give a preference bid of two diamonds, there will be no game in the hand, and the chances are that two clubs is not a particularly bad contract.

When this hand was actually played, declarer let the opponents win the first club trick and then had no further trouble.

Dummy won the second round of clubs and the diamonds were begun at once. East took the ace of diamonds and could not continue clubs; so that the rest of the play was very easy. Declarer made two clubs, four diamonds, two hearts and two spades for a total of ten tricks.

Clamp on Red Violence

New Delhi (AP)—India's government has announced there will be no change in its "get tough" policy against Communists who preach a seizure of power through violence. With the death of Vice-Premier and Home Minister Sardar Patel, who fought the Communists tooth and nail, fears developed that without his leadership the Indian government might relax his program.

Irish Night Committee for St. Mary's

This is the Irish night committee that planned this evening's entertainment for St. Mary's School Hall: Seated (l. to r.) Gustav Kogel, treasurer of the Holy Name Society; William Jordan, president; the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, moderator; Leo Lynch, ticket chairman; standing, Francis Noonan, general chairman; Leo Fitzgerald of ticket committee; John Gorsline, refreshments and Frank Perry, door committee. The program features talented children of the parochial school and other entertainers, who will be introduced by Dick McCarthy. It will start at 8 p. m. and following the show there will be dancing with music by Marty Kelly. (Lane Photo).

House Committee

clude such things as receipts for the old-age and survivors' insurance trust fund and the unemployment trust fund which are appropriated to the treasury and paid out by that agency. They vary in size from year to year and many of them are not charges against general revenue.

Bill Is Approved

The committee approved the full $15,834,134 requested for printing of new currency. It noted that the supply of $1 bills has reached a dangerous low.

To enable the Bureau of Customs to carry on a drive against smuggling and other illegal activities, the committee approved funds to continue for another year the employment of 207 new positions created recently.

The committee cut $3,500,000 from funds requested for the Internal Revenue Bureau, leaving it $252,008,000.

It provided no funds for new personnel and chided the bureau for having deferred the employment of new personnel for which funds were provided in the present year. It said it found no apparent need for additional help now.

More Agents to Be Hired

Funds were approved for 30 additional Bureau of Narcotics officers to fight the illicit drug traffic. The committee voiced concern over increased drug addiction, especially among younger age groups.

The full $647,000 requested by the Secret Service for the White House police force was approved.

The committee noted that estimated postal revenues of $1,839,500,000 would leave the department a 1952 deficit of approximately $500,000,000. Part of this deficit, the committee said may be cut by proposed postal rate increases.

The money taken in by the Postoffice Department goes to the treasury. The requested appropriations are intended to cover the department's total operating expenses and thus take care of the deficit.

The committee turned down the department's request for money to hire 200 additional postal inspectors and 35 postal clerks but said it does not object to employment of additional inspectors if the department can finance the program from available funds.

It added that the department is "dragging its feet when it comes to the installation of modern mechanical equipment" in its large city offices.

Engineers Meet Monday

The regular meeting of the Hudson Valley Division of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, New York section, will be held Monday at 8 p. m. at the auditorium of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., South road, Poughkeepsie. H. R. Wolfenden, general manager of the Cobra Wood Treatment Corp., will be the guest speaker.

Six Persons Killed

Naples, Italy, March 16 (AP)—A violent explosion aboard the 10,000-ton Italian ship Montalegro in Naples harbor today split the vessel in two and killed six persons. At least five were injured. The blast was believed to have been caused by a bursting oil tank. Fear that a second oil tank might explode caused authorities to clear the whole harbor area and the wharf where the ship was undergoing repairs.

Reports He Was Held Up

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—A Montgomery Ward warehouse manager was held up and kidnaped early today by a baby-faced man who threatened to kill him. Thomas J. Colloton, Jr., 34 said a "nervous" youth stuck what he believed to be a gun into his ribs and ordered him into his car, parked in front of a restaurant. Colloton said he escaped after a one-hour forced ride.

Irish Night Committee for St. Mary's

This is the Irish night committee that planned this evening's entertainment for St. Mary's School Hall: Seated (l. to r.) Gustav Kogel, treasurer of the Holy Name Society; William Jordan, president; the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, moderator; Leo Lynch, ticket chairman; standing, Francis Noonan, general chairman; Leo Fitzgerald of ticket committee; John Gorsline, refreshments and Frank Perry, door committee. The program features talented children of the parochial school and other entertainers, who will be introduced by Dick McCarthy. It will start at 8 p. m. and following the show there will be dancing with music by Marty Kelly. (Lane Photo).

House Committee

clude such things as receipts for the old-age and survivors' insurance trust fund and the unemployment trust fund which are appropriated to the treasury and paid out by that agency. They vary in size from year to year and many of them are not charges against general revenue.

Bill Is Approved

The committee approved the full $15,834,134 requested for printing of new currency. It noted that the supply of $1 bills has reached a dangerous low.

To enable the Bureau of Customs to carry on a drive against smuggling and other illegal activities, the committee approved funds to continue for another year the employment of 207 new positions created recently.

The committee cut $3,500,000 from funds requested for the Internal Revenue Bureau, leaving it $252,008,000.

It provided no funds for new personnel and chided the bureau for having deferred the employment of new personnel for which funds were provided in the present year. It said it found no apparent need for additional help now.

More Agents to Be Hired

Funds were approved for 30 additional Bureau of Narcotics officers to fight the illicit drug traffic. The committee voiced concern over increased drug addiction, especially among younger age groups.

The full $647,000 requested by the Secret Service for the White House police force was approved.

The committee noted that estimated postal revenues of $1,839,500,000 would leave the department a 1952 deficit of approximately $500,000,000. Part of this deficit, the committee said may be cut by proposed postal rate increases.

The money taken in by the Postoffice Department goes to the treasury. The requested appropriations are intended to cover the department's total operating expenses and thus take care of the deficit.

The committee turned down the department's request for money to hire 200 additional postal inspectors and 35 postal clerks but said it does not object to employment of additional inspectors if the department can finance the program from available funds.

It added that the department is "dragging its feet when it comes to the installation of modern mechanical equipment" in its large city offices.

Engineers Meet Monday

The regular meeting of the Hudson Valley Division of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, New York section, will be held Monday at 8 p. m. at the auditorium of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., South road, Poughkeepsie. H. R. Wolfenden, general manager of the Cobra Wood Treatment Corp., will be the guest speaker.

Six Persons Killed

Naples, Italy, March 16 (AP)—A violent explosion aboard the 10,000-ton Italian ship Montalegro in Naples harbor today split the vessel in two and killed six persons. At least five were injured. The blast was believed to have been caused by a bursting oil tank. Fear that a second oil tank might explode caused authorities to clear the whole harbor area and the wharf where the ship was undergoing repairs.

Reports He Was Held Up

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (AP)—A Montgomery Ward warehouse manager was held up and kidnaped early today by a baby-faced man who threatened to kill him. Thomas J. Colloton, Jr., 34 said a "nervous" youth stuck what he believed to be a gun into his ribs and ordered him into his car, parked in front of a restaurant. Colloton said he escaped after a one-hour forced ride.
